BITTER OPPOSITION
SEEN IN CONGRESS

Program Designed To Give Greater Strength
To Budget Bureau; Unity of Agencies Is Sought

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—An all-inclusive presidential plan for reorganizing the government—including the creation of two new departments—ran headlong into such formidable opposition in congress today that many sources forecast a bitter battle.

Though many legislators praised the plan, others were doubtful or frankly hostile.

Emphasizing "good management" rather than economy, President Roosevelt asserted in a special message that "the executive structure of the government is badly out of date" and recommended:

Recommendations.

That departments of social welfare and public works be added to the present ten, with all of the government's 100 or more agencies grouped under one department or another by executive order.

That the comptroller-general be replaced by an auditor-general with no authority to pass upon the legality of current expenditures and charged primarily with making a "post-audit" of government finances for the information of congress.

That the civil service be extended to include all positions of a non-policy making character, with increased salaries.

Cobb Says: Pacifists Think Rabbit Safe

By IRVIN S. COBB.
(Copyright, 1937, by The Constitution and the North American Alliance, Incorporated.)

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 12.—Representative Nicholas, of Oklahoma, is trying to accomplish something which would have been done long ago. He is preparing a bill to make military reserve units of the CCC boys, which would mean discipline and morale for thousands of young Americans, and, if needed, would provide the nucleus of a trained citizen-army.

Seems to me there is every reason why congress should enact the legislation, not as a warlike gesture, but as a peace-time move for national defense and national protection. But watch the professional pacifists fight it—professional pacifists being well-meaning folks who believe in Santa Claus, turning the other cheek, and the beautiful, if slightly impractical theory that a white rabbit will be perfectly safe as long as it trusts to the natural kindness of the coyotes.

Greeted by the first rays of sunshine Atlanta has seen for days, E. D. Rivers, of Lakeland, was inaugurated Governor of Georgia yesterday at an impressive ceremony at the state capitol. The new Governor can be seen pledging his administration to carry out the platform of his campaign and assuring the people of Georgia that he will co-operate fully with President Roosevelt and the New Deal.

One Killed, Ten Are Injured As Transport Plane Crashes

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, Famous Explorers and Wild Game Hunters, Are Reported in Serious Condition; Rain, Snow Hamper Rescue Work.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—(AP)—One passenger was killed and 10 of the 12 other persons aboard were injured, several seriously, today as a big airliner, feeling its way through thick weather, plunged into rugged foothills north of here.

Dr. E. S. Bennett, rescue physician, who identified the dead man as J. Braden, president of the Braden-Sutphin Ink Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, said Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, famed big game hunters and movie producers, were among the more seriously injured. Each had a fractured leg and Mrs. Johnson was unconscious. The physicians said injuries to others ranged from fractured skulls to minor bruises.

Despite a fractured ankle, the stewardess aided in removing and caring for the injured passengers.

BANKS OF ATLANTA ADD TO RESOURCES

New Officers Elected by Four Institutions; Annual Meetings Are Held.

New executive officers were named by Atlanta's four major banks at annual meetings yesterday, while stockholders were advised of substantial gains in financial resources.

At the Trust Company of Georgia, Thomas K. Glenn was elevated from president to the newly created office of chairman of the board. Robert Strickland was elected president to succeed Glenn; George S. Craft was appointed assistant vice president and Carroll Payne Jones was appointed assistant trust officer.

At the Citizens & Southern National Bank, Oscar H. Strauss Jr., store manager of Rich's, Inc., was elected director, while Eugene T. Johnson, former Atlanta banker who moved to LaGrange two years ago, was brought back as vice president.

At the Fulton National Bank, Charles S. Reid, Atlanta attorney and chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, and W. B. Haley, Albany banker, were elected directors. All other officers and directors at the four institutions were re-elected.

Reports on Business.

Thomas K. Glenn, retiring president, reported of the Trust Company of Georgia:

"Business in all departments increased during the year and after payments of dividends of $300,000 on the capital of $2,000,000, substantial sums were added to undivided profits and reserves."

John K. Otley Sr., president, reported of the Citizens & Southern National Bank:

"Business in all departments increased during the year and after payments of dividends of $300,000 on the capital of $2,000,000, substantial sums were added to undivided profits and reserves."

Marion Smith at Once Named To Regents by New Governor

Reappointment of Atlantan, Ousted by Talmadge, First Official Act of Rivers, Following Installation of Constitutional Officers and Adjutant General.

Governor Rivers yesterday installed his fellow constitutional officers, including Comptroller General Harrison and State Treasurer Hamilton, ousted by Governor Talmadge, and also reappointed Marion Smith, of Atlanta, to membership on the Board of Regents of the University System. Smith also was removed by Talmadge.

The new Governor also confirmed published reports that W. L. Miller, of Lakeland, would be appointed to the State Highway Board. Miller will succeed Judge Max L. McRae, of McRae, as board member, and it is understood he will become chairman of the board when Chairman W. E. Wilburn leaves the service of the state.

"The selection of Mr. Miller is definite," Governor Rivers said. "I will make the formal appointment as soon as Judge McRae leaves the Highway Department."

Judge McRae is expected to leave today or tomorrow.

Adjutant Sworn In.

The Governor also swore in Adjutant General Jack Stoddard and officially announced the appointments of Downing Musgrove, of Homerville, as his executive secretary, and Miss Gertrude Liles, of Willacoochee, as private secretary. Musgrove succeeds W. Carlton Mobley and Miss Liles succeeds Mrs. Eva G. Drew.

SMALL FARMERS TO GET MORE AID

Wallace Pledges Support of "Bottom One-Third"; Senate Bloc Is Active.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Resettlement Administration plans to help farmers at the "bottom of the heap" took shape simultaneously today in legislative and administrative quarters.

Saying there is a vast difference between "the top one-third" and the "bottom one-third of the farmers," Secretary Wallace declared in a radio address the agency would concentrate on a program of supervised loans for the smallest farmers.

He said last year Resettlement made such loans to 300,000 farm families and termed that its "most important" activity.

More of Same Seen For Atlanta Weather

A foggy morning and another warm, misty day is the forecast for Atlanta, according to the weatherman.

The mercury climbed to 65 degrees yesterday afternoon, 23 degrees above the normal for this time of the year in Atlanta. Temperatures have been between 15 and 20 degrees above normal for several days.

Today, according to the weather bureau, temperatures will range between 48 and 60 degrees.

"The skies will be cloudy and the weather will be just as it has been for the last few days," was the report from Chief Forecaster George W. Minding.

INAUGURAL PARADE IS GAY SPECTACLE

New Governor Calls on Talmadge Supporters To
"Step Out" and Clear
Way for New Program.

As a sparkling midwinter sun broke its way through dense black clouds which have been hanging low over the capitol for days, E. D. Rivers, of Lakeland, became Governor of Georgia at noon yesterday and he immediately followed his inauguration with an address in which he pledged complete fulfillment of his campaign promises and called upon Talmadge-appointed leaders of state departments to resign or be legislated out of office.

The sunshine could not have been more prompt if its arrival had been arranged by the inaugural committee.

It began to streak through the clouds just as Rivers raised his hand to take his oath of office. As the new Governor went into his inaugural address the skies became clearer and clearer. They were all blue in their brilliance as he finished.

A cheering crowd of upwards of 20,000 witnessed the inauguration and additional thousands lined the downtown streets for the mammoth parade which followed the event.

Sends Pledge to President.

Rivers was greeted by rousing cheers time after time throughout his address in which he displayed his full co-operation with the national administration of President Roosevelt by signing a telegram to the President in which he pledged himself to aid the recovery program in every way.

Eugene Talmadge, the retiring Governor, participated in the ceremonies. He had nothing to say except in turning over the great seal of the state to his successor who opposed his policies and who promises to discontinue practically all of them immediately.

Talmadge sat gravely throughout the Rivers address. As soon as it was over

Rivers Leads Prayer For Clark Howell

Governor Rivers and the huge crowd attending and participating in his inauguration yesterday paid tribute to the memory of Clark Howell, halting the ceremony for more than a minute to permit a silent prayer for the late president and editor of The Constitution, who for nearly 30 years served Georgia as its national committeeman.

As the new Governor prepared to begin his inaugural address, he said:

"There is one man of Georgia we miss today more than any other. His absence pulls the gathering and I want, before we begin this speech, all of us to stand for a minute or two in silent prayer in Clark Howell, the memory of Mr. Clark Howell, one of the most noble Democrats Georgia ever produced."

Major and Mrs. Clark Howell Jr. were on the inaugural platform and after the ceremony Major Howell called on the Governor to thank him for the tribute to his father.

FIFTY SCIENTISTS 'TRACK' KIDNAPER

Shoe Prints Major Clue; Manhunters Comb Region Where Body Found

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Manhunters, spurred by public wrath and presidential action, pursued an almost microscopic search of the Everett area tonight for the trail of little Charles Mattson's kidnaper-killer.

Spreading out from the spot where the boy's savagely beaten and frozen body was found yesterday in the snow, they scanned every foot of the country in a three-mile radius.

New York Police Hunt Murderer In 2d Bathtub Slaying Within Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A few strands of hair, an assortment of fingerprints and a bloodstained pair of trousers were chief clues for a squad of detectives and laboratory workers who set out tonight to find the perpetrator of New York's second "bathtub" slaying within a year.

The detectives began by questioning employees and tenants of the apartment building in which Mrs. Mary Robinson Case, the latest victim, was strangled and bludgeoned to death yesterday afternoon.

The half-clad body of the attractive 25-year-old advertising model was left in an overflowing bathtub. Her husband found the body when he returned home from work.

FINANCE COMMITTEE WORKS WITH BUDGET SEEKING DEFICIT CUT

Legislative Aid Appears Only Solution; City Pay Reductions Loom.

Legislative aid appeared the only possibility of reducing Atlanta's $1,629,000 deficit yesterday as council's finance committee prepared for another session today in an effort to balance the 1937 budget.

Members of the committee and city officials have conferred with the Fulton and DeKalb legislative delegations and were promised aid in solving Atlanta's financial dilemma.

However, it was known that the legislators agreed only to help in reducing the deficit and not to permanently increase the local tax load.

Several methods of raising additional revenue for a specified length of time for application to the deficit are under consideration of city leaders and legislators.

Finance committee members, hoping to achieve a balance in the budget at the meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon, admitted yesterday that a 10 and 20 per cent cut in appropriations for salaries appeared the only means of striking the balance.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee, declared that no additional revenue is in sight at the present time. He said the committee could not increase the amount of $105,000 set up Monday for emergency relief.

It was predicted that funds to reduce the deficit, as promised by Mayor Hartsfield in his campaign, will be available in time for inclusion in the June financial statement.

A proposal to increase the limitation on business licenses in Atlanta from $300 to $750 will likely be submitted to the legislature among the local bills, and if this is passed, it will mean more money for appropriations in the June state.

Gilliam asserted that 10 per cent cuts for employees making $100 a month and 20 per cent reductions for those making more than that amount, seem inevitable. Department heads will be responsible for distribution of the cuts in their departments.

SMALLEST FARMERS WILL GET MORE AID

Head of a congressional relief bloc, said the RA had set aside "a substantial sum" to provide for 100,000 families going into the northwest from the dust bowl states.

The bloc, including congressmen from six western states, wants an increase in proposed relief appropriations for the next five months. Pope said the Resettlement allotment will "meet immediate needs."

The Idaho senator reported four of his colleagues and four representatives will ask the house appropriations committee "probably Wednesday" for "adequate relief funds." He added he has been assured by the administration that the Resettlement bill will be passed.

Wallace said the Resettlement Administration should be authorized to make loans, chiefly drought victims, with loans and grants last year.

The average Resettlement small loan, he added, amounted to about $300 "to buy a mule and enough tools to put in a crop" and to furnish "enough groceries and feed" to last until harvest.

New 'First Lady' Charms Throng at Inaugural With Gracious Poise

Mrs. Rivers Spends Busy Day But Gives First Thoughts to Relatives, Friends, Pupils Here for Important Occasion.

By ANNIE LOU HARDY.

The slender and attractive wife of the new Governor smiled her way into the hearts of thousands of admiring Georgians yesterday who assembled to pay tribute to her distinguished husband, Eurich Dickinson Rivers, on the occasion of his inauguration as chief executive of the state. With characteristic dignity and gracious poise, she witnessed his induction into office, unconscious, perhaps, of the vital role she has played in his remarkable rise to power, but forming no small part of the intimate background which lends color and glamor to the state's new leader.

Always poised, Mrs. Rivers accepted the spotlight that necessarily turns upon the "first lady" of the state with grace and confidence. Arising in her hotel suite at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, she moved through the long and thrilling events of the day in a quiet, efficient manner that is characteristic, never seeming tired and always smiling. Her smile is also characteristic—and quite disarming!

After her accustomed breakfast of orange juice, a poached egg, toast, and coffee, which was served in her room, Mrs. Rivers donned for the inaugural ceremony a smart black wool suit, collared in black tulle, which she wore with a white satin blouse and a narrow-brimmed black velvet hat. A cluster of purple-crested orchids adorned the lapel of her coat.

Breakfast was not without interruptions, however. Members of her family from a distance were assembling for the event. Friends of long standing from here, and everywhere, were just could not resist dropping in to congratulate the soon-to-be Governor and his wife. Telephones were ringing constantly, many times demanding to speak with Mrs. Rivers. Each time she answered graciously and unburied to give directions for the day and that to answer questions graciously. Each time she was courteous and well poised.

Never once thinking of herself, the "first lady" found much to occupy the minutes intervening before the procession left for the capitol. She was anxious to know if the room of her daughter, Jerry, had arrived from Young Harris College. Two were coming for the inaugural and she wanted them to have the best of care and attention. The same went for her son, the Rev. John Harold, who had come from Lakeland. She found time to compliment the appearance of the chief of staff, Colonel W. F. Scott, and the naval aide, Lieutenant Commander Andrew Smith, who were resident in their new uniforms. She was deeply concerned over the arrival of the sixth grade students she taught in Lakeland. Two were coming to the inauguration as a special tribute to her.

Baby Granddaughter. She found time to devote to her cunning 3-year-old granddaughter, Jan Rivers, dressed in a white fur muff which she proudly displayed as a gift from her grandfather, Rivers. Clad tightly in Jan's chubby arms was a pink doll, Susie, who was "going to take to the inauguration if she's good."

Others of the family circle who had gathered for the auspicious occasion included Jan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Rivers Jr.; their only sister, Jerry Rivers, who is a senior at Young Harris; the Governor's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James Rivers; Mrs. Jackson, the Governor's sister; brother, R. C. Lashley, and Mrs. Lashley, of Cairo, and her sister, Miss Barbara Lashley, who is a teacher in the Atlanta school system.

At last it was 11 o'clock and time to start to the capitol. Still smiling graciously and greeting her friends on all sides with a cordial handshake, Mrs. Rivers was escorted downstairs by Lieutenant Commander Smith and ushered into the motor just behind the flowers which always form a charming accompaniment to an evening costume. Even at the eleventh hour, Mrs. Rivers displayed the same poise and graciousness which form the chief characteristics of the new "first lady" of Georgia.

KIDNAPER IS 'TRACKED' BY FIFTY SCIENTISTS

Bowing and smiling her way through the immense crowd that thronged the capitol lawn, the Governor's wife accompanied by her husband, the inaugural platform, a prepossessing figure in any throng and the cynosure of thousands of admiring eyes.

Immediately after the inaugural ceremony, the official party repaired to the Governor's office in the capitol for the installation of Marion Smith to the board of regents. Hundreds of friends and members of the official family converged upon Governor and Mrs. Rivers to offer their congratulations. Among the throng was a small boy, one of the "first lady's" former students, who presented her with a huge bouquet of red roses with the compliments of her fellow teachers in Lanier county. As Mrs. Rivers affectionately placed her arm around her pupil's shoulder to thank him, it was easy to understand why she is such a successful teacher and why her class, 35 strong, had chartered a bus and ridden all the way from Lakeland to see her become the state's "first lady."

Congratulations were cut short by hurried orders to repair to the reviewing stand at Five Points. There, accompanied by his family, a small group of friends and his official staff, Governor Rivers reviewed the inaugural parade, a brilliant and colorful pageant.

Pupils in Parade. Without doubt the most interesting feature of the procession to Mrs. Rivers was the presence of her sixth grade pupils, each of the boys wearing a badge that bore the like that habitually affected by the Governor. At their approach, her smile widened perceptibly and she arose to stand with her husband and his adjutant general, John Stoddard, while they passed in review, and the huge crowd cheered lustily.

Following the parade, the Governor's lady was whisked away to her hotel for a hurried luncheon and a few minutes rest before dressing for the reception at the executive mansion in Ansley Park, which began at 4 o'clock. She chose for the afternoon an ankle-length gown which combined a twilight blue tunic with a black skirt. Her slim waist was graced with a fringed sash which repeated the two colors. Forming an effective contrast to the becoming costume was a shoulder spray of pink orchids.

Still gracious and smiling, Mrs. Rivers received the hundreds who thronged the mansion, calling many by name and welcoming all to her new home. Apparently tireless and never weary, she listened to the words of review, and the huge crowd cheered lustily.

Dinner at Hotel. Due to the fact that former Governor and Mrs. Talmadge were unable to vacate the mansion before noon yesterday, and owing to plans for rearrangement and redecoration, the new Governor's family will possibly not establish residence there until after their trip to Washington to attend the inauguration of President Roosevelt. Accordingly, Mrs. Rivers returned to her hotel suite for a quiet dinner following the reception.

The brilliant inaugural ball given at the Shrine mosque climaxed the day's eventful program. The highlight of the evening came when Governor and Mrs. Rivers led the grand march, participated in by the members of the staff and their wives. The sartorial effect chosen by Mrs. Rivers for the ball was an ice green satin decollete model, fashioned on slim lines. The only trimming was introduced in the belt which was encrusted with a design of rhinestones and emeralds. Her bouquet was of orchids—those exotic

PRESIDENT PUSHES SEARCH FOR MURDERER. WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt virtually took personal command of the hunt for the kidnaper of the frozen body of a transcontinental bus near here last night.

The search was a desperate one, following a report that an aged man traveling on a ticket issued at Kelso, Wash., January 7, had fled from a bus during a brief stop here last Monday night. The bus driver, Glenn J. Halsey, said he had refused the man's request to stop the bus a short distance from Kelso.

Dr. R. G. Hall, coroner, said the man's death apparently was caused by exposure as he lay on the ground for about 5 feet, 7 inches in height, weighing 140 pounds, and as having brownish-red hair, red mustache and blue eyes. He added that he would term the man "hatchet-faced." He said he was partially bald, had no teeth and appeared to be about 60 years of age.

EX-ASYLUM INMATE HUNTED AS SUSPECT. TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 12.—(UP)—A former inmate of a Washington insane asylum with a criminal record and a mania for kidnapping, tonight was sought by federal agents as a suspect in the kidnapping-slaying of ten-year-old Charles Mattson.

The suspect was questioned in the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping case, less than two hours after young George Hunt Weyerhaeuser was returned to his home here.

He was taken into custody in 1933 when he wrote a threatening letter to John Van Herberg, Portland, and Seattle theater magnate, attempting to extort $50,000 by threatening to kidnap Herberg's 16-year-old son.

He was finally sent to the Washington state hospital for the insane at Steilacoom, but subsequently was released.

At the time of the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping the suspect was arrested in a waterfront hotel in Everett, Wash. He was held at the Tacoma city jail for three days, questioned, and released.

Seeking the man for questioning as a routine matter in connection with the Mattson case, FBI men were unable to locate him tonight.

"An angle that might possibly link the suspect with the Mattson murder was the fact that he had been planned to hold the Herbert boy captive in a cabin near Everett, close to where the Mattson boy's body was found."

Because of the way in which Charles was slain, police believed that the slaying was the work of a demented man. The suspect sought was said to fit this description.

SENATE PROBES CALL EX-HEAD OF EXCHANGE

Financiers Summoned in Railway Hearing; Many Inquiries Set.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—From construction gangs, police patrols, and two of the nation's leading banks, the senate summoned witnesses today to testify at its first major investigation of the session.

A Morgan partner and a former New York Stock Exchange head—Thomas W. Lamont and Richard Whitney—will take the stand Wednesday, as the senate interstate commerce committee resumes its inquiry into railroad financing.

The La Follette committee studying alleged violations of civil liberties will swing into action 24 hours later with an investigation of the flogging of Joseph S. Gelders, former University of Alabama physics professor, in Birmingham last September.

Labor Investigation. Two high officials of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, President Karl Landreche and Ernest L. Lemay, assistant to the president, will be questioned in connection with the flogging, investigators said.

Sergeant H. A. McClung, of the Alabama highway patrol; John Barton, Birmingham labor organizer, and Gelders, a representative of the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, also have been subpoenaed.

Chairman La Follette, Progressive Wisconsin, said New Jersey steel workers would testify January 18 and 19 about "certain incidents" in connection with the building of part of the Pulaski skyway by the American Bridge Company of Pittsburgh.

Van Sweringen Railways. He identified both the bridge company and the Tennessee firm as "subsidiaries of United States Steel."

William C. Calkins, chairman of the board of the Guaranty Trust Company, will join Lamont and Whitney, senate agents said, in describing the financial history of the Van Sweringen railway empire.

Evidence presented at earlier hearings disclosed that Morgan & Company and the Guaranty Trust had played a leading role in financing the 23,000-mile transportation network assembled by the late Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland.

Chairman Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, announced that the "inquiry would center on Allegheny Corporation, major Van Sweringen holding company, and allied real estate firms which amassed huge properties in Cleveland."

The world, were placed at the disposal of the manhunters.

ALL ROADS BLOCKED TO IMPERIAL VALLEY. SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Jan. 12.—(AP)—All roads into the Imperial Valley were blocked tonight by police and deputy sheriffs following a report a suspicious-looking man resembling the kidnaper of Charles Mattson was headed that way, possibly for the Mexican border.

Two newsmen and a service station attendant notified police, each giving descriptions of the man which roughly fitted the kidnaper of the Mattson boy.

WASHINGTON BOY BRINGS ARREST OF THREE. MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Police temporarily detained three men for questioning tonight in the Charles Mattson kidnapping case. They were driving an automobile with a Washington state license.

REMOTE POSSIBILITY. CLEBURNE, Texas, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Officers held a 40-year-old man today on the remote possibility he may have been involved in the Mattson kidnapping. The man, who had been held in a blindfold before officers told him why he was being detained he said:

"They don't think I had anything to do with that kidnapping, do they?"

The man gave several names and told stories which officers said conflicted. His fingerprints were mailed to Washington.

BODY CHECKED AS KIDNAPER. FULTON, Mo., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Missouri highway police tonight sought to link with the Mattson kidnapping case a body of the frozen body of an unidentified man who leaped from a transcontinental bus near here last night.

Sheriff H. T. Crowson, of Callaway county, said a traveling search for the man was climaxed by the finding of the body on the ice of a small creek near Kingdom City, Mo., seven miles north of here.

The search was a desperate one, following a report that an aged man traveling on a ticket issued at Kelso, Wash., January 7, had fled from a bus during a brief stop here last Monday night. The bus driver, Glenn J. Halsey, said he had refused the man's request to stop the bus a short distance from Kelso.

Dr. R. G. Hall, coroner, said the man's death apparently was caused by exposure as he lay on the ground for about 5 feet, 7 inches in height, weighing 140 pounds, and as having brownish-red hair, red mustache and blue eyes. He added that he would term the man "hatchet-faced." He said he was partially bald, had no teeth and appeared to be about 60 years of age.

EX-ASYLUM INMATE HUNTED AS SUSPECT. TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 12.—(UP)—A former inmate of a Washington insane asylum with a criminal record and a mania for kidnapping, tonight was sought by federal agents as a suspect in the kidnapping-slaying of ten-year-old Charles Mattson.

The suspect was questioned in the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping case, less than two hours after young George Hunt Weyerhaeuser was returned to his home here.

He was taken into custody in 1933 when he wrote a threatening letter to John Van Herberg, Portland, and Seattle theater magnate, attempting to extort $50,000 by threatening to kidnap Herberg's 16-year-old son.

He was finally sent to the Washington state hospital for the insane at Steilacoom, but subsequently was released.

At the time of the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping the suspect was arrested in a waterfront hotel in Everett, Wash. He was held at the Tacoma city jail for three days, questioned, and released.

Seeking the man for questioning as a routine matter in connection with the Mattson case, FBI men were unable to locate him tonight.

"An angle that might possibly link the suspect with the Mattson murder was the fact that he had been planned to hold the Herbert boy captive in a cabin near Everett, close to where the Mattson boy's body was found."

Because of the way in which Charles was slain, police believed that the slaying was the work of a demented man. The suspect sought was said to fit this description.

Famous Explorers Injured in Plane Crash

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, noted explorers, were seriously injured when the air transport on which they were traveling from Salt Lake City crashed yesterday 18 miles from its goal—Los Angeles. Eleven others were aboard the plane. One passenger was killed in the crash.

Cal., fractured jaw and loss of several teeth.

R. T. Anderson, who booked passage through an Atlantic City, N. J., travel agency, fractured leg.

T. Tillinghast, Hartford, Conn., sales manager of Pratt & Whitney, airplane engine manufacturers, fractured ankle.

D. Hulse, Stromberg Electric Company, Chicago, uninjured.

Miss Lita James, Los Angeles, uninjured.

Arthur S. Robinson, Rochester, N. Y., possible fractured ankle.

Stewardess Esther Jo Conner, Glendale, Cal., fractured ankle and leg.

Without Warning. The crash came without warning, at least in the passenger compartment. The stewardess said there was no inkling of trouble as the ship flew toward its goal "on the instruments."

Her remarks agreed with the report of Robinson's first survivor brought out, that "we were joking with the stewardess and had no working of the crash."

The Western Air Express sky liner from Salt Lake City was within 10 miles of its port at Union Air terminal, Burbank, when disaster overtook it. It pancaked into a hillside on near to aid that the cries of the injured brought rescue parties direct from a sanitarium where they were heard, but the elements that contributed to the crash also hampered rescue work and communications. Heavy snow succeeded a blinding electron rain and hailstorm over the rough Tehachapi foothills and delayed the return of rescue parties for hours.

Emergency Treatment. The more seriously injured were given emergency treatment at a fire lookout station 100 yards from the scene of the crash. Among the seven taken there by the relief party from Olive View sanitarium, four miles away, were the stewardess and Mrs. Johnson.

Johnson and two other passengers apparently less seriously injured were left aboard the plane temporarily. Pilot Lewis, also reported as suffering from a fracture, insisted on staying with that group until the other seven had been treated.

Robinson's Story. Robinson extricated himself from the wreckage and met the first rescue party on its way from the sanitarium. He was found to have only a bruised foot.

The stewardess complained that her leg was aching. There was a man lying across her leg, and I moved him. "It was snowing on top of the mountains, and we were on a steep slope with no warning that anything was wrong. We were riding along very smoothly. Suddenly the plane began to drop—drop. Then there was a terrible crash."

"My safety belt kept me in my seat. I didn't lose consciousness, but my leg and side hurt. I managed to get to my feet and crawl out. I saw Mr. and Mrs. Johnson sprawled in their seats. They were unconscious, I know."

Mountains Cleared. The pilot had cleared the last high mountain barrier between Los Angeles and the desert, his route having been the northern pass route taken by Western Air Express planes, from Palmdale on the Mojave desert through the Mint Canyon region to Newhall or Saugus, from which area planes both from San Francisco and Salt Lake pick up the radio beam into the field in the valley a few miles below.

The localizer beam is from Union Air Terminal at Burbank and a message from the pilot indicated he had started his descent to the airport at the 247th elevation.

Ordinarily the Western Air Express transport is scheduled to arrive here at 10:45 a. m.

When its radio became silent at 11:05, a general alarm was spread.

MATHEMATICAL TITAN TO GIVE LECTURE HERE

Dr. Salo Finkelstein To Appear at Emory, Georgia and Shrine Mosque.

Dr. Salo Finkelstein, the man who cracks his mental whip and makes whole herds of numbers roll over and do tricks, will be in Atlanta today. He arrives this morning for a series of demonstrations about the taming of mathematics to be delivered in Georgia this week and next.

Dr. Finkelstein, in case you forget, is the man who Einstein has admitted is, in his own line, the greatest the world has known. Greater even than Einstein.

Can you multiply 3,431 by 643 and give the correct answer in three seconds? If you can you are in the same class with Dr. Finkelstein. Suppose someone wrote a row of figures—small ones—across a sheet of paper and covered them with a blotter. Remove the blotter for a shade less than a quarter of a second, while you looked at the figures. Could you then write down the sum of those figures? Dr. Finkelstein can, and does.

The mathematical doctor comes from Poland. There he was employed in the state statistics office and treasury. He did the work of 25 operators with calculating machines ordinarily accomplished.

After his arrival in America he was employed by a radio chain to aid in compilation of the election returns, last November. Again they were able to dispense with 25 adding machines and their human attendants.

Dr. Finkelstein has lectured at most of the leading universities in America.

While in Georgia he will give a lecture and demonstration tonight, at Emory University. This lecture will be open to the public. On Friday night he will be in Athens, lecturing for the University of Georgia.

The public will again have an opportunity to marvel at his calculating ability at 8:30 o'clock Monday night, when he will appear at the Shrine Mosque.

MOYERS HOLD-UP TRIAL TO OPEN THIS MORNING

Defendant Charged With Robbing T. K. Glenn of $30,000 in Office.

Trial of W. T. Moyers for the alleged $30,000 hold-up robbery of T. K. Glenn on November 19 will open at 9 o'clock this morning in Fulton superior court, Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr. will preside.

Moyers is alleged to have entered the office of Ernest Woodruff in the Trust Company of Georgia building and to have forced Glenn to give him $30,000. He later escaped in the confusion caused by a Cable Piano Company fire, police said.

He was arrested by Department of Justice men the following Monday in a Trust Company building with the bulk of the money in his pocket. His son was arrested with him.

Assistant Solicitor General E. A. Stephens will prosecute. George Finch will defend Moyers. Moyers has been held in Fulton tower since his arrest. His son was released on $2,000 bond.

FOUR ARE ARRESTED ON SWINDLING CHARGE

An alleged swindle in which a grocer was cheated of change for a $10 bill caused the arrest last night of three women and a man on charges of swindling conduct, Fulton police said.

The defendants were listed as Louise Chambers, 21, of 850 Harold Avenue, S. E.; Leona Smith, 41, of 101 Sisk, 28, and Jim Smith, all of 624 Woodward avenue. John Baker, delivery boy, identified the Chambers woman, police said, as the person to whom he gave the change, after delivering groceries last December 15 for a store at 585 Woodward avenue.

U. S. NAVAL BUILDING CAUSES STIR IN JAPAN TOKYO, Jan. 13.—(Wednesday)—The newspaper Asahi today reported Japan was concerned greatly over United States' plans to build a fleet of 54 vessels costing $200,000,000.

The Japanese navy, the newspaper said, regards these as an attempt by the United States to gain control in the Pacific.

It said in part: "America's auxiliary fleet plan . . . is chiefly concerned with forming a second-line battle formation with fleet repair ships, transports, hospitals, oilers, et cetera. With completion of such an auxiliary fleet, the first-line battle fleet is certain to be strengthened immensely."

Portrait Presented to Pittsburgh. PITTSBURGH, Jan. 12.—(UP)—The A. W. Mellon Educational and Charitable Trust announced tonight the gift of an original portrait of Stephen Collins Foster, American composer, to a memorial association at the University of Pittsburgh.

The trust purchased the portrait about two years ago from a New York art dealer. It was painted some time before the war. Between the times by Thomas Hicks.

The gift came on the eve of the anniversary of the death January 13, 1864, of Foster, composer of "My Old Kentucky Home," "Old Black Joe" and numerous other American ballads, at the age of 38.

E. T. LUKE FOUND SHOT IN BEDROOM OF HOME E. T. Luke, 40, was found shot and seriously wounded in the chest early last night in a bedroom of his home at 247 Eleventh street, N. E. He was admitted to Georgia Baptist hospital. Police said a .32-caliber revolver was found near by when his mother-in-law, hearing a shot, rushed into the room.

FEDERAL ASSOCIATION MEETS IN POST OFFICE The Atlanta Federal Business Association will meet at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the old post office building, it was announced last night.

TROOPS CALLED OUT AS RESULT OF RIOTING IN AUTO PLANT STRIKE

113,000 G. M. C. Workers
Will Be Idle Today Following Walkouts.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Jan. 12.—(P)—More than a thousand national guardsmen equipped for a field campaign headed tonight for Flint, Mich., where several hundred "sit-down" strikers held possession of General Motors Corporation factories after a bloody street battle with Flint city police.

Legal steps were taken by Flint officials to evacuate several hundred barricaded "sit-down" strikers from the Fisher Body plant where the first bloodshed occurred.

"John Doe" warrants were issued by Municipal Judges Edwin D. Malory and Frank W. Cain calling for the arrest of all the men inside the plant on charges of "kidnaping, vicious destruction of property while rioting, felonious assault and criminal syndicalism."

Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott said that he would serve the warrants within the next 24 to 48 hours.

Governor Frank Murphy, aroused by the first violence of the widespread strikes against General Motors automobile plants and reports of an influx of out-state labor unionists into Flint, issued the order for the troop movement late today, saying the pickets "will insist upon peace and order."

Leaders of the strikes by United Automobile Workers of America said that they were turned off and the main gates of the Fisher Body No. 2 plant at Flint closed to food carriers yesterday before the rioting that sent more than a score of strikers and police to hospitals for treatment of gunshot and other wounds.

William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, in a statement said: "The riot in Flint on Monday night is very much to be deplored. To start with, the office was closed and the plant was placed in shut-down condition. Reduced plant temperature and our unwillingness to have the plant police handle provisions were only the result of this. The strikers were not prevented from handling their food themselves. The trouble started when an outside organizer with a sound truck incited pickets outside and induced them to storm the gates and imprison the plant police."

"We have not imported any guards—all our watchmen are Flint men. None of them were harmed by the strikers, a sure sign that they could not have started the trouble. The only imported men in Flint today are found in the ranks of the union."

"We are not going to attempt to shut off heat, light and water—we never intended to. We are not going to encourage violence because we do not believe labor disputes can be helped by violence."

Glass shortages forced suspension tonight of two Fisher Body plants, at Pontiac, Mich., and Lansing, affecting 11,400 workers. The final assembly lines of the Pontiac Motor Car Company, employing 1,800, and of the Oldsmobile division at Lansing, with 4,200 workers, are to close Wednesday. These will bring the total idle in General Motors plants to 113,000.

Aman who identified himself as an investigator for Senator La Follette's special committee on civil liberties violations collected unexploded gas grenades, shotgun shells, bullet and fragments of exploded gas shells at the riot scene in Flint today.

PROSPERITY REPORTED BY BANKS OF ATLANTA

Report of the First National Bank: "Net earnings for 1936, after taxes and charge-offs, were $1,422,893.06. Out of these earnings the bank during the year paid four regular quarterly dividends amounting to $540,000 and two extra dividends of $210,000, and added $180,000 to surplus, $111,800.06 to undivided profits and $375,000 to the bank's reserve account."

"Most Successful Year."

Ryburn G. Clay, president, reported on the Fulton National Bank: "In 1936, your institution enjoyed the most successful year in its history. Deposits increased nearly $4,000,000 over 1935; earnings on the common stock, after all charge-offs and after provision for interest on the preferred stock, were $28 a share; the surplus was increased from $350,000 to $500,000; the reserve for the retirement of the preferred stock was increased from $25,000 to $60,000, although not actually needed, ample reserve were set up to cover what is thought will be all possible contingencies including unusual losses which might occur in the future and an extra month's salary was paid to everyone on the bank's pay roll."

From Savannah, William Murphy, president of the Citizens & Southern National Bank, reported that earnings were more than doubled in 1936. Glenn, newly-appointed chairman of the board of the Trust Company of Georgia, will continue active duties with the bank, in addition to his other extensive connections, which include directorships in the Coca-Cola Company, the Atlantic Steel Company, the N. C. & St. L. railway, the Continental Gin Corporation, the Atlantic Corporation and many others. Glenn has been with the bank since 1901, when he was secretary to Joel Hurt, then president.

"Not Quitting Work."

"I am not quitting work," he said yesterday. "But, I want to continue active for at least another five years to round out 50 years of service with the company. After that time, I shall consider the matter further."

Robert Strickland becomes the fifth president in the history of the Trust Company of Georgia. Others have been Joel Hurt, Ernest Woodruff, H. Warner Martin and Glenn.

A native of Tallapoosa, Ga., Strickland came to Atlanta in 1913, after attending Emory College at Oxford, Ga. Admitted to the bar in 1914, he practiced until 1917. After two years' service in the army, he entered banking in 1919 in the old Fourth National Bank of Atlanta. In 1922 he was elected vice president of that institution and later served in the same position with the First National Bank. In 1929 he became vice president of the Trust Company of Georgia, becoming executive vice president in 1933 when that company entered the commercial banking field actively.

Association President.
Strickland served as president of the Georgia Bankers' Association in 1927, at that time the youngest man ever elected to that office. He is a past president of the Atlanta Clearing House Association and was at one time vice president of the national bank division of the American Bankers' Association. At present he is a director of the Association of Reserve City Bankers. He is a Rotarian and a member of the leading social clubs of the city.

George S. Craft, new assistant vice president, joined the Trust Company in 1935, after graduation from the University of Virginia and the Atlanta Law school. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield P. Jones and a member of the late J. Carroll Payne, one of Atlanta's distinguished pioneer citizens.

New Director.
Oscar R. Strauss Jr., newly-elected director of the Citizens & Southern National Bank and a native Atlantan. After studying in the Atlanta public schools, Marist College and Emory University, he acquired specialized training in the New York University School of Retailing. He trained for a year in one of the large department stores of New York city and entered the employment of Rich's in 1929. Two years later he became advertising and sales promotion manager and last year was designated as store manager, at which time he also became director of the corporation. He is a member of the Citizens Club, the Masonic Club and is a past president of the Atlanta Advertising Club. He is married and has two children.

Eugene T. Johnson, new vice president of the Citizens & Southern, started his banking career with the Central Bank & Trust Corporation in Atlanta 22 years ago and was a member of the bank until 1920 when it was merged with the Citizens & Southern, at which time he was elected cashier in charge of the Tenth street office. He moved up to a vice presidency of the institution and two years ago he went to LaGrange as president of the LaGrange National Bank, one of the Citizens & Southern affiliates. He is married, the father of four children.

Was Cashier at 15.
Charles S. Reid, new director of the Fulton National Bank, is a member of the firm of Little, Powell, Reid & Goldstein; a trustee of Young Harris College; chairman of the Democratic state executive committee and is prominently identified with the Atlanta, Georgia and American bar associations. He was cashier of the Georgia bank at the age of 15.

W. B. Haley, the other new director of the Fulton, is president of the City National Bank of Albany, Ga.; the First National Bank of Bielefeld; the First National Bank of Cordale; the Bank of Terrell at Dawson, Ga. He is also president of the Albany Coca-Cola Bottling Company and a member of the directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

John E. Sanford, the new director of the First National Bank, was born in Huntsville, Ala., December 7, 1879. After attending schools at Huntsville, he served with the army in Cuba, during the Spanish-American war. After that, he entered the fertilizer business and in 1922 he went to Chicago as executive vice president of Armour Fertilizer Works, becoming vice president of that organization in 1932. In January, 1933, he moved back to Atlanta, transferring the headquarters of Armour Fertilizer Works to this city. He is a Rotarian, a member of the industrial advisory committee of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank, and a member of the board of directors and executive committee of the National Fertilizer Association.

Foster Family Sought
For Baby Yet Unborn
TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 12.—(P)—A couple in distressed circumstances offered today for adoption a baby they are expecting in about two weeks.

The Tampa Tribune, which published the offer, said the parents asked that their names be not disclosed and added that already to-night a dozen Florida families had bid for the child.

Investigators said the couple has two other children and that the father, crippled from an accident, has been unemployed several months.

The man and his wife were quoted as saying they wanted to give the baby a better home than they could provide. They asked that the adopting family defray medical expenses.

Japanese Arrested For Killing Felines

TOKYO, Jan. 12.—(P)—Eikichi Tatsuguchi, 71, who said "every cat looks like five yen to me," was arrested today and confessed killing more than 1,000 Tokyo felines.

He explained he sold them "at a big profit" to the makers of samisens (Japanese banjo-like instruments). Tatsuguchi, he said, is stretched across the drumhead of the samisen, which is popular with geisha girls in entertaining their gentlemen friends.

Police said Tatsuguchi sprinkled catnip in streets and back gardens in the twilight, then placed a live sparrow near-by with a string attached to draw unsuspecting housecats into his hands.

ROTH STRING QUARTET ENCHANTS AUDIENCE

Noted Hungarian Ensemble
Makes Atlanta Debut at Woman's Club.

BY MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.
The Roth String Quartet, famous Hungarian ensemble, made their Atlanta debut last night as a presentation of the Atlanta Music Club in the women's auditorium. The huge audience, bespeaking in appreciation the immense growth in chamber music among Atlanta concert-goers.

The personnel of the quartet is Feri Roth, first violin and founder of the ensemble, Jeno Antal, second violin; Ferenc Molnar, viola; and Janos Scholz, violoncello. They are young-looking musicians, though they have been organized and concertizing as a quartet for 10 years, and their playing is certainly mature in every respect.

The audience sat in rapt admiration of the fine degree of perfection that they offered, holding an almost reverent silence between each movement, and at the completion of each quartet, of which there were three, giving them an ovation. Such respect was well deserved for their ensemble perfect in every respect, and their synchronization unusual, their tonal blending perfectly balanced, their nuances felt with one accord, their moods completely merged into one so that their finished interpretation left one with the impression that it was one instrument and one artist that had spoken instead of four. It was well known the finest quartet playing that Atlanta has heard.

The quartet opened their program with the Haydn "Quartet in D major, Opus 76, No. 5," played in its entirety. Their rendition of the work was clearly and cleverly enunciated in the pure Haydn style, with never a detail of phrasing neglected, never a flaw in tonal clarity, the whole handled with utmost decorum and regard for the finesse in interpretation that the work demands.

The second offering was a step directly into the modern school and the contrasting results were most satisfying, for the composition was the brilliant "Quartet in D flat major, No. 2," by the quartet's fellow-countryman, Debussy. They imbued this work with an understanding and a color that surely none but Hungarians could have given it. From beginning to end there was pure revelry in rich and rare color, both melodically and harmonically. The last movement of this work, "Molto adagio-andante," was one of unforgettable beauty.

The printed program closed with the Schumann "Quartet in A minor, Opus 41, No. 1," back to the romantic school, and again it was a happy choice for the beauty of the work coupled with the beauty of their performance left the audience literally in a glow of artistic appreciation, so that they demanded more, which was graciously given in another never-to-be-forgotten gem of tonal loveliness, Tschaiikovsky's "Andante Cantabile."

JAYCEES WILL HEAR WARM SPRINGS AIDE

Harrison Jones, chairman of the state committee for the Warm Springs Foundation endowment campaign, will address the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce at 12:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the luncheon meeting in the Ansley hotel.

Mr. Jones will outline general features of the drive, for which Georgia's quota is $100,000. He has already been assured of the "Jaycees" fullest support and co-operation. Members of the organization are requested to attend the meeting.

BARNEY FAGAN PASSES; WAS MINSTREL STAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(P)—Barney Fagan, composer and old-time minstrel star, died on his 87th birthday anniversary today in a hospital at Bayshore, Long Island. He was a native of Boston.

His last appearance on Broadway was in 1926 with George Jessel in "The Jazz Singer," but during the last 25 years of the 20th century Fagan became internationally famous as a burned-cork comedian.

His wife, as well known on the vaudeville stage under the name of Henrietta Bryson as he was, died several years ago.

MOVEMENT OF GOLD TO FORT KNOX BEGINS

Impregnable Granite and Steel Depository To Receive First Today.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(P)—The treasury announced tonight that it has begun to move a mammoth gold hoard to a new steel and granite depository at Fort Knox, Ky.

Guarded by soldiers, secret service men, postoffice inspectors and mint guards, the first shipment moved out of the Philadelphia mint this morning. The bullion will reach Fort Knox tomorrow.

It is the first of a series of transfers which eventually will put $4,000,000,000 of the gleaming metal into the fortress-like Kentucky strong box. There, officials believe, the riches will be safe from any invading army of the future.

They foresee no invasion, of course, but have adopted the policy of taking no chances.

Initial Shipment.
The treasury announced tonight to reveal the amount of the first shipment, but it was believed to be about $2,000,000. It went by special train, which included special cars for armed attendants.

The metal was carefully wrapped and crated to avoid scraping. It was shipped by parcel post and was under direct supervision of the Postoffice Department during the journey.

In Kentucky, the gold will be unloaded from a spur within the Fort Knox military reservation and trucked a short distance to the new bomb-proof depository.

Torch-Proof Vault.
The impregnable fortress, which cost $350,000, is only 105 by 121 feet. Outer walls are rough granite and 25-inch torch-proof steel sheathes the vault, which is entered through a 20-ton door. It requires three persons to open the door, each holding a separate secret combination.

Machine gunners will man four "pill boxes" connected with the building by underground passages and other guards will be on duty inside the structure.

MECHANIZED TROOPS
WILL GUARD GOLD
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 12.—(P)—Uncle Sam's only army on wheels, done."

The 79-year-old pontiff ignored the warning of his physician, Dr. Amintore Milani, by devoting himself actively to his affairs and holding audiences from his sick bed. He was exhausted late in the day, reliable informants declared, and was given a stimulant.

These sources quoted a statement the Pope made to a cardinal last week end as an indication he was aware that death might not be far off:

"I must do my entire duty while the Master concedes me energy; my successor must not find things unduly changed."

The exhibition will be formally opened today at 1:30 P. M. by Governor E. D. Rivers and Mayor W. B. Hartsfield.

GLASS PLANS TO PUSH
RFC EXTENSION BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(P)—Leaders forecast today that congress will give quick approval to the administration bill to extend the life of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, who introduced the bill, and others interested said they had no opposition to it.

Glass, acting chairman of the banking committee, said: "There is no objection to the measure that I have heard. For that reason I am not going to ask to have it referred to subcommittee."

There was a possibility that the full banking committee might report the measure tomorrow, making it the first administration bill acted upon at this session.

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, another member of the committee, also forecast quick action, as did Senator McNary, Republican leader.

"I imagine there will be thorough agreement on the measure," Byrnes said.

Chairman Steagall, Democrat, Alabama, of the house banking committee, said he looked for "little opposition" either in the committee or on the house floor.

Representative Hancock, Democrat, North Carolina, banking committee member, said: "I am confident the legislation will go through."

WESTERN COLD WAVE SLOWLY MODERATING; RIVER FLOODS FEARED

Florida Citrus Crops Mean- while Continue Facing Heat Threat.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A costly cold spell moderated in the west today while Florida fruit crops were threatened by record heat.

The country's middle section, enjoying moderate temperatures, watching rivers rise slowly and flood warnings went up along some streams.

The United States Weather Bureau reported that temperatures continued below normal in the west and above normal in the east.

California fruit interests estimated the crop damage at $12,000,000. Deaths in the west from snow, ice and cold was estimated at 30. Many persons still were snowbound, but one party of seven entertainers, trapped on a bus trip in Arizona, was rescued during the day.

A party of five lost in an automobile was the object of searches in Nevada, but there was virtually no hope they would be found alive.

Texas counted its weather loss in the millions as the eastern and southern sections fought back to normalcy through sleet and snow. Damage in the east Texas oil fields, put at $1,000,000. Tyler, its schools and business houses closed as power and lights failed, estimated damage at $250,000. Paris had power again after two and a half days. Newspapers were suspended in several Texas cities, isolated by sleet battered wires.

Quincy, Ill., resumed nearly normal contact with the outside world when news wires were restored, but many homes lacked electric lights and telephone service.

Occasional rain was in sight for southern Ohio, where rivers were reported rising. Streams swelled also in West Virginia and some southeastern states. Flood warnings were raised along the Ohio river in Arkansas.

Lander, Wyo., was the nation's cold spot, with —12. Other subzero readings among the dozen or more over the nation were Miles City, Mont., and Sheridan, Wyo., —8; Huron, S. D., —10; Minneapolis, Minn., —10; Chicago, Ill., —10; Omaha, Neb., —10; Flagstaff, Ariz., and Grand Junction, Colo., —12.

A FARMER BOY

ONE of the best known medical men in the United States is Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, New York, who was born on a farm in Pa. He noted early in his medical career that many of his prescriptions prepared from roots, herbs, and barks, and herbs, such as his "Favorite Prescription," produced astonishing results. He early founded a Clinic and Hospital in Buffalo, N. Y. Advice by letter is free. For young girls growing into womanhood, for women in middle life going through the "change," or those who suffer from backache, headache, nervousness and discomforts associated with functional disturbances, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just the vegetable tonic needed. It stimulates the appetite. New size, tab. 50c, liquid $1.00 and $1.35.

THE COOK'S NOTE BOOK By RUTH CHAMBERS.

"If there's ice cream, it's a party," small Johnny may declare. But if Johnny's dad is consulted as to his dessert preferences, nine chances out of ten he'll say, "Let's have pie!" There's something about pie which certainly makes a hit with the men. Fancy desserts may come and go—and it is fun to experiment with them.

TODAY'S DINNER
Lamb Patties
Baked Potatoes Creamed Peas
Lettuce with French Dressing
Pineapple and Raisin Meringue Pie

But wise is the woman who acquires the art of good pie-making. She will always be able to cap her dinners with a good dessert.

Of course, as every true pie-fancier knows, the test of a pie's worth is in its crust. Infinitely varied are the fillings—fruits, cooked and fresh; vegetables (pumpkin and squash); custards and creams; fillings baked with the pie crust and those which are put in afterwards. Varied are the forms—two-crust pies and open-faced, latticed tops and those surmounted by a meringue. There are full-sized pies and smaller ones, and little individual ones.

Crust Important Factor.
But for all their variety, one thing good pies have in common is a flaky, tender crust. Good pie-makers have learned by experience to rely upon hard to obtain that ideal result.

It isn't hard to make good crusts with lard, for lard is pliable and workable over a wide range of temperature. It is never brittle even when taken directly from the refrigerator. In making a pie crust, the ingredients and the hands should be cool, and the mixture should be handled quickly and lightly.

Left-over bits of pastry dough may be used to make little tarts or cheese sticks.

Plain Pastry.
One and a half cups flour, 1-2 cup lard, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 to 6 tablespoons ice water.

Sift flour, measure and add salt. Cut lard into flour and salt until the crumbs are the size of dried peas. Add the water slowly, using just enough to make the dough hold together. Roll to about 1-8 inch thickness and transfer to the pie pan with out stretching the dough. Bake at 425 degrees F. for 10-12 minutes. Recipe makes one 8-inch two-crust pie.

A single pie crust may be baked on the outside of the pan. It should be pricked with a fork to prevent blistering.

Pineapple-Raisin Meringue Pie.
Two cups raisins, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 cups crushed pineapple, 3 eggs. Cover raisins with water and boil until they are tender. Mix the sugar, salt and flour together and add to raisins. Let boil several minutes until thick, then add to the beaten egg yolks. Add the crushed pineapple. Cool and pour into a baked pie shell. Beat the egg whites with 6 tablespoons of granulated sugar until all the sugar is dissolved. Cover filling with meringue and bake in a slow oven.

Apple Pie.
Four to 6 tart apples, 5-8 cup or more sugar, 1-3 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon butter. Slice the pared apples and arrange until the lower crust is well filled.

NEW YORK POLICE HUNT 2D BATHTUB SLAYER

on the same day a plea for executive clemency was made in Florence's behalf before Governor Herbert H. Lehman at Albany.

Unlike Mrs. Titterton, the bride of Frank Case, 30-year-old executive of the American Hotel Association, was not ravished.

A ten-cent detective story magazine whose garish cover depicted the Titterton case was found in the room of Frank Solomon, 48, a porter in the building. He was released after questioning.

Francesco Tateano, 27, a building fireman, also was questioned and released after it was found he was working there under the assumed name of "Harvey Viola." He explained he changed his name because he had entered the country by jumping ship here in 1930.

A few wisps of dark brown hair found attached to Mrs. Case's fingers indicated her assailant was a white man.

Overturned chairs and blood splashes in the kitchen, living room and bathroom, where the crime was committed, were on the fourth floor of a six-story building in the Jackson Heights section of Queens, told a mute tale of a desperate struggle.

After strapping her with his hands and crushing her skull with a ball-headed mechanic's hammer, the assailant placed her body in the tub, turned on the water, and then apparently changed his clothes.

A stained pair of brown trousers was found in the incinerator in the basement—which was not operating at the time—along with the death-dealing hammer, and art student at her home in Lancaster, Pa., on November 25, 1935, was exonerated from any possible suspicion when police established he was at his office in Manhattan when the crime was committed.

Latticed Cherry Pie.
Three cups pitted sour cherries, 1 to 1-2 cups sugar, 4 tablespoons flour. Drain cherries. Combine sugar and flour and mix with cherries. Fill the lower crust with this cherry mixture. Lay twisted strips of pastry criss-cross over the cherries. Bake at 425 degrees F. for 20-30 minutes.

Chocolate Pie Filling.
One and a half ounces or 1-2 squares chocolate, 2 cups milk, 3-4 cup sugar, 5 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Heat chipped chocolate with all but 1-4 cup of milk as it is scalding. Combine dry ingredients; make the paste with the 1-4 cup of milk and add to scalded milk. Cook until the spoon leaves its mark in the mixture. Stir just enough to prevent lumping. Add the hot mixture gradually to the beaten egg yolks and reheat. Add flavoring and cool. Fill baked crust and top with meringue.

Meringue.
Two egg whites, beaten stiff; 2 teaspoons water, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat the egg whites until frothy. Add the water and vanilla. Continue beating until the mixture will form peaks that stand up when the beater is lifted. Fold in sugar and pile on top of pie. Bake meringue in a slow oven (300 degrees F.).

U. S. STEEL POST GOES TO VORHEES

Named to Finance Committee of $2,000,000,000 Corporation.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The United States Steel Corporation today took another step toward injecting steel into its corporate veins by naming E. M. Voorhees vice chairman of its finance committee.

Wall Street circles say Voorhees, 45, was about to be elevated to the presidency of Johns-Manville Corporation, when the steel corporation dropped this new job in his lap.

On April 1, this man who has persistently evaded the spotlight of publicity in the financial world, will take over the job of helping run the finances of the $2,000,000,000 steel company.

As Wall Street measures it, a man is young at 50. Voorhees will follow to the board of the steel corporation two other "young" men, recently appointed—48-year-old Leon Fraser, president of the First National Bank and one-time head of the Bank for International Settlements, and 50-year-old Irving S. Oils, lawyer.

As vice chairman of the finance committee he will have the position vacated by Edward R. Stettinius who on January 1, 1936, moved up to the chairman's seat of the committee.

NATHANIEL MORRISON PASSES AT RESIDENCE

Nathaniel Morrison, veteran stone-cutter and former resident of Stone Mountain, died yesterday morning at the residence, 1343 Lanier boulevard, northeast.

Mr. Morrison, who was 70, came to this country from his native England as a youth of 18. He was a member of the Woodmen of the World.

Surviving are his wife, a daughter, Mrs. O. F. Kornegay; two brothers, Samuel Morrison, of Baltimore, and Charles Morrison, of Montreal, Canada, and two grandchildren.

Final rites will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill, with the Rev. W. E. Couch officiating. Burial will be in Lithonia cemetery.

SHIP SINKS IN STORM; 4 DROWN, 20 MISSING

LONDON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Four persons were drowned and 20 others were missing today after the Finnish motorship Johanna Thorden sank off the Orkney Islands in an ocean storm.

The ship, of 3,223 tons, was en route to Gothenburg. It was not known whether she struck a reef or broke up on the rocks.

Eight survivors in a lifeboat landed at South Ronaldshay, one of the Orkney Islands where four bodies were washed up.

The missing persons were reported to be in a lifeboat on the stormy sea. The Johanna Thorden carried a crew of 28 but her passenger total was not registered.

The sentence was passed by agreement after the jury had been selected to try the case.

Fifty thousand steel workers and 10,000 other workers of Youngstown, Ohio, in the Mahoning Valley in one week received wage increases. It was the largest pay roll since the World War.

Finnish Art Exhibit To Be Opened Today

More than 10,000 individual creations of Finland's arts and crafts will be placed on exhibition in Atlanta today as a means of teaching the average Atlantian just what type of work the Finnish artisan can produce.

The display is on the second floor of Dayton-Paxon's and will be open for 10 days for public inspection.

Louis Bonyhard, commissioner of the Finnish Industrial Art exhibits in the United States, has brought the exhibit to Atlanta and it will be formally opened at a luncheon at 1:30 o'clock today, with honor guests including Governor and Mrs. Rivers and Mayor and Mrs. Hartfield.

HAYDEN LEAVES FUND TO YOUTH OF AMERICA

Foundation for Moral, Physical and Intellectual Help Proposed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Fifty million dollars, gathered by the late Charles Hayden in the steep canyons of Wall Street, will be poured out upon the youth of America under terms of his will, offered for probate today.

The bachelor financier died last Friday, "firmly convinced," in the words of the will, "that the future of this nation, and of the world for that matter, depends in no small part upon the young men of the United States."

That the nation's youth be "kept from evil environments and guarded against baleful influences," he provided that his residuary estate, valued by William M. Parke, one of his attorneys, at $50,000,000, be devoted to establishment of "the Charles Hayden foundation for the moral, physical and intellectual development of boys and young men."

Numerous bequests to relatives and friends were listed in the will and a codicil, both dated August 19, 1935.

Activities of the foundation, Hayden suggested, should be centered in New York city and Boston. He provided, however, that "nothing herein contained or otherwise shall be construed to prevent the aiding of such activities anywhere else in this country."

Arthur J. Ronaghan, president of the Equitable Trust Company; Eric V. Daveler, president of the Utah Copper Company; and Edgar A. Donahay, controller of Hayden, Stone & Company, which Hayden headed, were named as executors.

JOHN H. HECKER, 60, PASSES IN FLORIDA

Former Atlantan Succumbs to Heart Attack at Home in Shamrock.

John Henry Hecker, former Atlantan and well known in this city, died Monday night at his home in Shamrock, Fla., at the age of 60. A heart attack caused death.

Mr. Hecker was general manager of the Putnam Lumber Company and had lived in Florida for many years. He was associated with the lumber firm for four decades. He was a native of Prospect, Ohio.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Vera Wood, of Tampa; four sons, Mrs. Susan Hecker and Miss Minna Hecker, both of Atlanta; Mr. N. C. Flint, of Montgomery, and Mrs. Clyde Smith, of Albany, Ga., and two brothers, T. E. Hecker, of Shamrock, and Robert H. Hecker, of Savannah.

Final rites will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill, with Dr. John Moore Walker officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

VACANCY IN OFFICE Judge Rules Neither Contestant Is Justice of Peace.

A vacancy in the office of justice of the peace now exists in Oak Grove district, Judge Virgil B. Moore, of Fulton superior court, ruled yesterday after reviewing testimony in the suit brought by A. A. Owen contesting the election of G. W. Adolphus to that position December 5.

Owen claimed he was the only qualified candidate and that Adolphus, whose name was written in on the ballots by 14 voters, had not qualified and therefore was not eligible to hold the office to which he was elected by two votes more than Owen received.

Judge Moore ordered court costs divided.

C. C. Mason, chief clerk of the ordinary, said there had been no justice of the peace in the Oak Grove district in several years and that this office had been handled by J. F. Butler, ex-officio justice of the peace, who has the authority to call a special election to fill the vacancy. It was indicated no election would be called.

Other officers re-elected were K. Kaplan, first vice president; H. Bergman, second vice president; H. Smith, treasurer, and M. Baum, secretary.

A financial report revealed the association had made loans to 129 people in 1936, totaling almost $15,000. The group, celebrating its tenth anniversary, was organized to aid the small business and workingman by lending money without interest, which the members lock in small monthly payments. Rabbi Harry Epstein, one of the leaders, said.

A banquet will be given on February 7 for the benefit of the Free Loan Association, he said.

FOUR GEORGIANS DIE, AND 12 ARE INJURED IN HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS

Two Men Are Killed Near Jackson En Route to Inau- guration Exercises.

Highway accidents yesterday in two states claimed the lives of four Georgians and injured 12 others.

Two men died at a Griffin hospital of injuries received when the truck in which they were riding overturned near Jackson. Nine others were injured.

At Dalton, an elderly woman was killed and three hurt in crashes there, and a collision of a truck and an automobile at Bunnell, Fla., was fatal to an Ellenton, Ga., woman.

2 MEN KILLED IN JACKSON CRASH

JACKSON, Ga., Jan. 12.—(P)—Two men were killed and nine others injured today when a truck loaded with national guardsmen en route to the inauguration of Governor E. D. Rivers in Atlanta overturned near here.

The dead, both members of company A, 121st Infantry, were Julian Evans and Ferrell Maddox. Both died at a Griffin hospital.

The injured were listed at the Strickland Memorial hospital in Griffin as follows: William C. Thornton, 24, broken collarbone; Clifford E. Standard, broken arm; Sanders Thompson, bruises and cuts; Arthur Stewart, head injuries; Marvin Standard, possible fracture of the skull; Luther Stiles, head cuts, and Chester Cook, probable internal injuries.

The driver of the truck, whose name was not learned immediately, received a broken arm. He was understood to be from Marietta.

All of the troops were from Butts county, and left Jackson this morning. Chief of Police C. T. Thornton, of Jackson, said the truck, which belonged to the army, left the highway while trying to pass another vehicle.

ELDERLY WOMAN KILLED AT DALTON

DALTON, Ga., Jan. 12.—(P)—A 75-year-old woman was killed instantly as two young girls were slightly injured today when a truck and an automobile collided on a street in this city.

Mrs. Tiny Brackett, 75, of Dalton, was crushed to death as the truck pinned the small car against a telephone pole.

Mary Brackett, 9, and Erlene DeFore, 6, suffered slight injuries and were given emergency treatment at a hospital here. Mrs. Will Brackett, 24, and Will Brackett, 24, escaped injury.

All lived at Dalton, near here, and were riding in the coupe.

Dalton city police said they arrested the driver of the truck, and was booked as William Sewell, 27, of Atlanta. The driver of the truck was booked later on a charge of manslaughter, driving recklessly and assault with an automobile.

The truck was carrying 9,000 pounds of tire fabric, police reported. Mrs. Abe Burnett, of Detroit, Mich., was critically injured today when her husband's automobile was in collision with another car on the Cleveland highway.

The driver of the other car, John Helton, of route 4, Dalton, was also taken to the hospital in a critical condition. Burnett was uninjured, as were two others in Helton's car.

FLORIDA ACCIDENT FATAL TO GEORGIAN

BUNNELL, Fla., Jan. 12.—(P)—Three persons are dead as the result of a collision early today between an automobile and a lumber truck.

Fatally injured were Mrs. J. R. Watkins, 26, of Shell Bluff, Fla.; Miss Lucy Wilson, 14, of Ellenton, Ga.; and J. E. Roberts, 21, of Green Cove Springs, Fla.

Shelton Brooks, driver of the truck figuring in the crash at a road intersection, received a broken arm. Roberts was riding on the truck and Miss Wilson was a passenger in the automobile driven by Mrs. Watkins.

R. M. HITCH ELECTED MAYOR OF SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 12.—(P)—Captain Robert M. Hitch ran ahead of his unopposed ticket in the city election today, getting 3,099 votes for the majority of Savannah. His total was 53 votes higher than that of H. Lee Fulton Jr., leading vote getter among the alderman candidates.

Mayor-elect Hitch and his board take office on January 25 for a two-year term.

Pupils Taught by Mrs. Rivers Attend Inauguration

Among the most interested spectators at the inauguration yesterday of Governor E. D. Rivers were the members of the sixth grade of the Lakeland (Ga.) school. These pupils, shown above on the steps of the state capitol, were taught by Mrs. Rivers until she resigned several weeks ago to preside at the Governor's mansion in Atlanta. The children, who came to Atlanta yesterday in a highly bedecked bus, also attracted much attention when they took part in parade through the city, following the exercises.

WILL KEEP PROMISES, NEW GOVERNOR SAYS

cials of Atlanta and Fulton county for declaring this a holiday, and the various hands and units, organizations and individuals, who have participated in making this occasion a success.

"I look forward, with a great deal of pleasure, to my residence in Atlanta. I know many of its people personally and I look forward to living among them with very pleasant anticipation. I shall, of course, maintain my legal residence in Lakeland, Lanier county, where I have on the banks of the large lake there erected a modest little cottage, which will be my future home after I leave the office of Governor, and I trust a place of rest at intervals during my term of service.

"I look upon the office of Governor as a job I expect to work hard at. I am old-fashioned enough to believe in the old-time religion of our fathers and I solicit the prayers of the good people of this state for a successful administration. No administration can be successful without the support of the people. I urge the progressive and humanitarian people in every community to create and constantly maintain a state of public mind actively interested in the success of this administration. Be on guard against the emissaries of reactionism, whose carving criticisms will betray their position. Sailing under the colors of nippeden Democrats, they will try to knife the party from within by their efforts to block us in carrying out the Democratic party platform. They will fail; we will succeed for: "Right is right, since God is God; And right the day must win; To doubt would be disloyalty; To falter would be sin; "May God bless you. I thank you."

NEGRO IS ON TRIAL IN ATHENS SLAYING

Willie Daniel Denies Charge
He Slew Policeman
Herman Stein.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 12.—(P)—Willie Frank Daniel, negro, on trial for the slaying of Policeman Herman Stein, in November, denied the charge today.

Taking testimony in the case, he said he was in the city of Athens in the day and arguments will be heard tomorrow morning.

The officer was killed while attempting to arrest the defendant on a charge of carrying a dangerous weapon. Judge Blanton Fortson is presiding at the trial, which attracted hundreds to the courtroom.

Stein was in the service several years on the police force and was arrested after being shot and Daniel was arrested in northeast Georgia and charged with the slaying.

Chancellor of New York University To Deliver Anniversary Address.

MOUNT BERRY, Ga., Jan. 12.—The anniversary address here tomorrow by Dr. H. W. Chase, chancellor of New York University, will be the day's feature of the exercises being held here this week celebrating the thirty-fifth anniversary of the founding of Berry schools and college.

Dr. Chase will be introduced by Miss Martha Berry, who founded the schools in 1902. The anniversary dinner, the annual meeting of the Berry Alumni Association and two debates are also on the program for tomorrow.

Thousands of students have enrolled at the schools during the 35 years of its operation and the campus has been enlarged so that 25,000 acres now form the college land area. There are more than 100 buildings on the campus and 150 instructors form the faculty.

LEADER AT M'RAE, J. FRANK COOK, DIES

Prominent Banker, Ex-Legislator and Pioneer Citizen Passes.

M'RAE, Ga., Jan. 12.—(P)—J. Frank Cook, 84, one of the leading citizens of this section, was found dead in bed at his home here this morning. He was one of the pioneers in the development of religious, educational and business institutions in this section. Mr. Cook served as a trustee of the South Georgia college which was located here and organized the Merchants' Bank of M' Rae, serving as its president for a number of years. He was a native of Coffee county.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock with interment in the M' Rae City cemetery.

A. J. WILEY, 73, DIES AT CEDARTOWN HOME

CEDARTOWN, Ga., Jan. 12.—A. J. Wiley, 73, prominent Cedartown resident and retired Central of Georgia railroad engineer, passed away this morning at his home on Park street.

Mr. Wiley has been connected with the Central of Georgia railroad for over 35 years and retired in 1902. He was a prominent member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, a director of the Liberty National Bank of Cedartown and a member of the Methodist church. He was born in Cherokee county, Georgia, in 1863, but has lived in Cedartown for the past 25 years.

Mr. Wiley is survived by his widow, the former Miss Zuelia Godwin; a sister, Mrs. J. W. Parry, of Marietta, and a brother, Charles Wiley, of Sycamore.

Funeral services are to be held tomorrow with interment in Greenwood cemetery in Cedartown.

BANK SUES WESLEYAN FOR DEFAULT ON BONDS

Solution of Financial Difficulties of College.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 12.—(P)—The Citizens & Southern National Bank, as trustee for bondholders, filed a petition in equity in Bibb superior court against Wesleyan College here.

The action was filed by the bank as trustee under a mortgage from Wesleyan dated February 15, 1928, filed in Bibb superior court March 12, 1928, securing $1,000,000 in bonds issued by the school.

The petition sets forth that $2,000 of the $1,000,000 principal has been paid. The petitioners allege the school failed to meet payments of principal on February 15 in 1933, 1934, 1935 and 1936. Arrearages set out in the petition total $110,000 principal and $219,560 interest.

Acknowledging service, Bishop W. A. Ainsworth, chairman of the college board of trustees, said: "As regrettable as this is, the public needs to understand that this is an essential part of the process that is being taken to straighten out certain complications that have overtaken the college in connection with its bonds. The trustees of the college are confidently expecting to find a satisfactory solution of the problem and carry on the college without interruption. The interests of all patrons will be cared for in every respect."

MRS. SARAH BRYAN PASSES AT ATHENS

Rites Will Be Held Today
for Mother of Mrs. L. L. Hendren.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Sarah Morris Bryan died here this afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Linville L. Hendren, wife of the dean of the University of Georgia. Mrs. Bryan had made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Hendren since 1918.

She was born in Meriwether county in 1849; the daughter of John Morris and Eliza Dupre Pattillo, and was educated at Nehut Home school, Social Circle, where she was staying during the War Between the States. In 1866 at Union Point she married Captain Thomas Marion Bryan, of Cherokee, S. C.

Mrs. Bryan is survived by three daughters and one son, Mrs. Hendren, of Athens; Mrs. Benjamin Wofford Wait, of Tampa, Fla.; Mrs. Sarah Frances Pickett, of New York city; and Mrs. William McCulloch, of Jefferson, Ga. Her grandchildren include Mrs. John Simpson, of Clarksville; Miss Janet Newton, Augusta; Miss Virginia Newton, of Jackson, Miss.; Misses Catherine and Charlotte Newton, Athens; Charles H. Newton Jr., Denver, Col.; William T. Bryan, of Jefferson; Sibley Bryan, Harold Bryan and William McCulloch, Union Point; Robert F. Bryan, Atlanta; Wofford Wait, and Thomas Bryan Wait, Tampa; Miss Frances Bryan Pickett, New York city; Mrs. M. Bryan Jr., Miss Sallie Bryan, Southworth Bryan and Thomas Marion Bryan, all of Jefferson.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hendren on Cloverhurst Terrace, tomorrow at 2 o'clock. Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, of the First Baptist church, of which Mrs. Bryan was a member, will officiate. Interment will take place at Union Point.

CONGRESSMAN PACE HEADS ORGANIZATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(P)—New congressman elected Representative Stephen Pace, Americus, Ga., Democrat, today as first chairman of a new member organization.

The Georgian, who headed a 12-member committee on arrangements for the organization meeting, said he would serve a month, then pass the chairmanship to another freshman congressman, probably a Republican.

Others chosen for the first month were Representative Shafer, Republican, Michigan, vice chairman, and Representative Clason, Republican, Massachusetts, secretary.

The new house members agreed to meet on alternate Tuesdays, and to invite a department head or other government official to address each meeting. Today's address was by Speaker Bankhead.

Rivers Is Sworn In as Governor by Chief Justice Russell -- Then Administers Oath to New Constitutional Officers

Immediately after his inaugural address Governor Rivers yesterday administered oaths of office to Georgia's constitutional officers. The ceremony is shown above. The officials taking the oath are, left to right, Attorney General Yeomans, Comptroller General Harrison, Superintendent of Schools M. D. Collins, Secretary of State Wilson and State Treasurer Hamilton, the latter two ousted by Talmadge.

RIVERS INAUGURATED GOVERNOR OF GEORGIA

he shook hands with Rivers and left the capitol. He said he was returning to Sugar Creek, from whence he sprang ten years ago to rise to great political heights only to be toppled from them when he ran against the tremendous Roosevelt tide.

Talmadge's farewell caused little stir. Before leaving his private office he bade good-bye to his coworkers and a few faithful followers, including John E. Whitley and Charles E. Stewart.

"Factionalism Is Dead."

Significant was the remark of Chief Justice Richard B. Russell Sr. just before he gave Governor Rivers his oath of office.

"All factionalism is dead," the veteran chief justice said. "And, at a time like this, we should let the dead past bury its dead."

Talmadge and Rivers came to the speakers' platform together but so dense was the crowd on it that the inaugural throng did not see them at first. Then they stood together to pose for photographs. The crowd cheered.

Rivers' expression was serious. There was a shout from the crowd, "Go on back to Sugar Creek," and Talmadge received the jibe with a broad grin which drew cheers from the crowd.

John B. Spivey, of Swainsboro, president of the state senate, told the crowd:

"We inaugurate today not only a new Governor but a new era and a new deal in Georgia."

Just before the joint session had formally declared Rivers won in the general election by a vote of 202,419 to 1,131 for the Rev. L. P. Glass, prohibition party candidate.

Rivers, 41-year-old Lakeland lawyer who came to the Governor's office after two unsuccessful campaigns, sketched the highlights of his program.

He urged the legislators to provide more money for schools, to furnish free school books through high schools, to carry out his campaign promise of better rural roads, improved facilities at eleemosynary institutions, a tax exemption for homesteads and farms used as homesteads.

Throughout his address he stressed this theme:

"The security of the average Georgia citizen and his family is a matter of first importance to this state."

He said he would "co-operate with President Roosevelt and the national administration in the economic rebuilding of Georgia, as well as in every other part of his great program for helping humanity."

Today the two houses of the legislature meet at 10 a. m. to begin work on the Rivers program. It appeared legislative leaders plan to adjourn, probably scores of other bills also would be introduced tomorrow, although no legislation can be passed until the 10-day organization session is ended. Legislative leaders plan to adjourn, probably Saturday, to permit their attendance at President Roosevelt's inauguration on January 20, and to start the regular session January 25.

First administration bill to be introduced probably will be one to reorganize the state fiscal year to make it end June 30, this plan already is in effect in some departments, particularly the board of regents and the highway board. Others follow the calendar year.

Inaugural Parade.

Thousands of Georgians, here for the inauguration, saw their first inaugural parade in years. Numerous military units, many of them from Savannah, took part in the gay procession through flag-bedecked streets. A reception at the Governor's mansion, and an inaugural ball tonight, followed.

Rivers spent only a few minutes in his office on his inaugural day. He appointed and swore in Marion Smith for the membership on the board of regents of the university system, signed the oaths of office for the various constitutional officers of the state, swore in the new county commission of Lanier, his home county, shook hands with scores in the milling throng, and then left to review the parade.

Rivers spoke earnestly in a strong voice. Prolonged applause followed his declaration that "Georgia must be respected for the observance by its people."

Members of the Rivers family are shown as they view the inauguration. Front row, left to right, are Mrs. Rivers; her mother, Mrs. J. C. Lashley, of Cairo; Miss Jerry Rivers and Mrs. W. F. Scott, of Thomasville. In the rear row are Mrs. E. D. Rivers Jr. and her daughter, Jan, and Mrs. Andrew A. Smith, of Savannah.

ple of their laws and for the swift punishment meted out to criminals.

"Bare 'Prison Racket'."

"I shall not use the pardoning power . . . to protect those who murder, ravish or rob" and "proven criminals will not be promiscuously turned loose upon Georgia to again endanger the lives and property of our law-abiding citizens."

There shall not be a pardon racket during my administration in Georgia."

Coincidentally, Governor Talmadge discussed his pardon activities in his press conference. He said he had forwarded his list of pardons for the past two years to the legislature, and added he did not know how many there were.

"I pardoned every one where I thought there was a reasonable ground to justify it," Talmadge said. "I am sorry more of them were not called to my attention."

Praises Legislators.

The new Governor praised members of the legislature who, during the past two months, have come to Atlanta to talk over with him problems of the state.

"Our program is the platform of the Democratic party of Georgia, written at our state convention in Macon October 7, 1936. I am convinced that the legislative branch of the state government will rapidly enact into law those things which the people of Georgia deserve, demand and need."

Rivers expounded forcefully his view that officials of state departments who have taken part in partisan politics in the last campaign should "from good sportsmanship abide the result" and step out of office. He said the highway department, in particular, was "active in politics."

"The people of Georgia have given a mandate for those who comprise the present personnel (of the highway department) to give way to those in line with the new program."

"If they fail to do so, I shall call the general assembly to reorganize the highway department in order that the new administration may not be hampered by people who are out of harmony with its program."

He added:

"As with the highway department, so with several other departments, boards, bureaus and commissions of the state government" which he did not list by name.

Pledges Sobriety.

The new Governor did not declare his stand on expected bills to modify the state's prohibition law, but the throng applauded when he said:

"There is an obligation on the part of all good citizens, through education and precept, to encourage sobriety on the part of our people." This obligation, he said, is greater among public officials of the state.

"As Governor, I shall undertake to practice sobriety before the people of Georgia, and I wish every official and employee of the state government to do likewise."

Discussing old age pensions, a major plank in his platform, he said:

"The poor house method of caring for our dependent aged must go, as must potter's field. We must provide for our old people with adequate, dignified subsistence during their declining years. . . . The advent of the machine and the large increase in our population have served to make the solution of this problem (of providing a livelihood for old people) more difficult. The only satisfactory answer to it is old age pensions."

Rivers Inauguration Sidelights As New Deal Is Promised State

The joint committee named to escort Governor-elect Rivers and Retiring Governor Talmadge to the inaugural exercises were Senators Burgin, Patten and Purdon, and Representatives Swindle, Bradley, Chapell, Lanier and Freeman.

The joint session met at 10:30 and dissolved at 11.

Several hours before the new Governor reached the capitol thousands of persons gathered before the entrance of the state house. National guard organizations from throughout the state sent companies of men here for the ceremonies.

From Savannah came the famous Georgia Hussars, Captain Lindsey Henderson commanding. Savannah also sent its 18th field artillery under command of Colonel Sheffall B. Coleman.

This unit came to Atlanta by motor truck and picked up other units as it proceeded across the state.

Adding color to the crowd was the Winder Drum and Bugle Corps of 40 young girls resplendent in their red and black uniforms topped off with red and black trench caps.

This organization took an outstanding part in the re-election campaign of Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., and presented the girls at his various meetings as "my body guards."

The organization came into prominence after reports circulated that Russell's opponent, Governor Talmadge, carried with him an armed body guard of men in civilian clothes.

The girls got a big hand from the crowd as they walked among the inaugural throngs which lined Washington street on the west entrance of the capitol.

Rev. B. F. Fraser, retired Methodist minister now living in College Park, yesterday was appointed chaplain of the state senate by President John B. Spivey. President Spivey said that Dr. Fraser had been recommended to him by residents of all sections of Georgia.

Senator Paul Lindsay rose in the senate yesterday to ask if marital law had been declared again when Senators Everett Millican, of Atlanta; Jack Williams, of Waycross, and Lee Purdon, of Blackshear, showed up in military uniforms.

These gentlemen are just here to protect the president of the senate and the senator from the thirty-fourth (Mr. Lindsay) President Spivey replied.

"It just shows the variability of this body," commented Senator James J. Flynt, of Griffin. "One day we are dignified senators and the next day we are lieutenant colonels."

The three senators are members of Governor Rivers' staff, and were dressed for the inauguration.

The first senate resolution of the session, offered by Senators Williams and Purdon, extended the privileges of the floor to Kirk Sultine, of Blackshear, president of the Georgia Press Association, who was also dressed in Special seats were provided the city officials on the stands at the capitol and at Five Points.

Rivers' pledge to sobriety of personal habits and appeal to the members of the assembly to stay sober drew one of the most boisterous bursts of applause during the ceremony.

A huge crowd swarmed into the capitol yesterday to witness inauguration of New Deal-pledged Governor Eurith Dickinson Rivers. Here are some of the other things that happened:

Mrs. Rivers spent a large part of her time during her husband's inaugural address clutching the coat of arms of the state, which she carried in her arms.

An enterprising youngster hawked "Ed Rivers bow ties" about the corridors of the capitol and through the crowd outside. His business appeared good. The Governor always wears a ready tie, black bow tie.

All that Governor Talmadge left in his office for his successor—aside from furniture, of course—was a box of cigars and a report of the condition of the treasury at the close of business on January 11. The report, conspicuous on an otherwise bare desk, showed $9,143,673 in cash in the treasury and in the hands of the various departments.

Senate President John B. Spivey had a hard time getting the joint session of the legislature for canvassing election returns to a close. He "advised" the assembly. Attendees insisted the correct word was "dissolved," so he later dissolved it.

The Chatham county delegation was the only one to gain special recognition from the Governor during his inaugural address. Near the end of his speech, one of the large crowd from Savannah waved a "Chatham County" banner close to the stand. "I see all you Chatham county folks," Rivers remarked, "and all the rest of you from all the other counties, and I'm glad you are here."

Rivers said during his address that he wanted to retire to his "modest cottage on the banks of a small stream in Lanier county when my term as governor is over."

A man in the crowd disagreed: "You're going to the White House," he shouted.

A 19-gun salute to the Governor started booming shortly after Rivers opened his address. He stopped his address after the third gun and paused at attention until it was concluded.

Governor Talmadge sat on the stand next to Senate President Spivey. Apparently unable to adjust himself to a folding chair, he finally came to a rest with his arm draped in a manner of comfortable affection about Spivey's shoulders—and Spivey is a Rivers man through and through.

Mayor Hartsfield, inaugurated a week ago, and members of city council attended Governor Rivers' inauguration in a body. They were members of the committee on arrangements, which Hartsfield appointed.

Smith was chairman of the board when he was removed by Talmadge. He is reappointed to membership. Colonel Sandy Beaver, of Gainesville, is now chairman but it is generally understood that the board plans to restore Smith to the chairmanship some time in the future.

Succeeds Barron.

As a board member he succeeds David I. Barron, of Monroe, who was appointed by Talmadge when he removed Smith.

Smith's membership on the board is from the state at large and he serves at the pleasure of the Governor and for no fixed term. E. E. Lindsay's similar membership on the Board of Control expired with the end of the Talmadge administration, but Governor Rivers has made no appointment to the place.

Adjutant General Stoddard was escorted to the Military Department by former Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp.

Before leaving his office, Governor Talmadge instructed Mobley, Mrs. Hattie B. Jackson, his personal secretary, and Mrs. T. C. Brannon, a member of his staff, to remain with Governor Rivers as long as he needed their services. The new Governor said he would avail himself of the opportunity to have them assist his own office force in getting started. Mobley said he intended to practice law and Mrs. Jackson said she would announce her new connection in a day or two.

The terms of office of Herman DeLaPerriere, state supervisor of purchases, and A. L. Houson, veterans' service officer, also expired with that of Governor Talmadge. Governor Rivers has not announced appointments for these posts.

He received and accepted the resignation of Gordon Kettles, of Dalton, as assistant supervisor of purchases.

After Governor A. B. Chandler had made a personal appeal for his passage, the senate late today adopted a resolution ratifying the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution. The vote was 19 to 14.

Two hours of wrangling preceded the vote, during which opponents of the resolution branded it as "Communistic," a violation of the "sanctity of the home," legislation that would "destroy the federal government to control the thinking, reading and acting of every child in the country."

Appearing before the senate after the noon recess, the Governor said that "at the request of the President of the United States" he wished ratification of the child labor amendment by the Kentucky legislature.

He read a communication from Kentucky senators and representatives in Washington urging adoption of the resolution. It asked for action without delay and said "it would be tragic" if failure of Kentucky to ratify the amendment would prevent its adoption.

"This resolution is occasioned by the fact that many children under 18 years of age are forced to work long hours for meager pay in sweatshops," Governor Chandler said. "In Kentucky there isn't such a problem but we are obligated to help other states in the matter."

Denying that a child labor amendment would take away any of a parent's rights as to the training of his child, the Governor said:

"If I thought this legislation would prevent a farmer from working his boy or give the federal government power to tell him how he should raise his children, I'd be against it."

REA FINANCING.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Rural Electrification Administration agreed today to loan the Southwest Tennessee Electric Membership Corporation, Brownsville, Tenn., up to $250,000 to build 275 miles of line to serve 1,055 farms in Madison, Haywood and Tipton counties, Tennessee.

NEW CITY RELIEF PLAN PROPOSED BY LONGINO

Municipal Appropriation Is Held Inadequate by County Board Member.

Fulton county commissioners may set aside an appropriation to match that of the city for relief work within the city limits and then care for the needy in the county themselves separately, Commissioner George F. Longino indicated yesterday.

This followed action of the finance committee of city council Monday setting aside an appropriation of $105,000, including $25,000 already paid for January, as the city's share in providing relief.

"The finance committee's appropriation is inadequate," Longino declared, "and the Board of Public Welfare cannot hope to operate under the meager appropriation. The county has already donated $300,000 for the year and it will be necessary for the city to supply an additional sum of like amount."

Longino emphasized the county could not increase its $25,000 monthly relief appropriation.

Fulton commissioners, the city council, Mayor Hartsfield and the Fulton and DeKalb county legislative delegations are to meet Thursday, January 21, in an effort to provide the necessary funds for aid to the 10,000 on relief.

The city finance committee said they had provided all that was possible for relief during 1937.

If no more money is available from the city, the county will have to match the city appropriation for use in Atlanta to be administered as the council sees fit, and we shall care for the needy of the county in our own way," Longino declared.

The Board of Public Welfare is operated by the county commissioners under act of the legislature and will be closed necessarily February 1st methods of financing have not been completed by then, Longino said.

AIRPLANES MAY SPAN ATLANTIC BY SUMMER

Drive Begun To Win Federal Subsidy for Dirigible Service.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(UP)—Negotiations between the United States and Great Britain for the operation of regular trans-Atlantic airplane passenger service are virtually completed and experimental flights may be held this summer, the United Press learned tonight.

At the same time a drive has been opened in congress to obtain federal subsidies for the initiation of regular dirigible passenger, freight and mail service across the Atlantic. This could be brought about by an amendment to the new maritime act making its terms applicable to lighter-than-air craft.

The act permits the government to subsidize the nation's merchant marine by contributing to the construction cost of surface vessels. The cost of building a dirigible similar to the German Zepplin Hindenburg is about $3,000,000.

Commerce Department officials argue that in addition to facilitating travel across the Atlantic, construction of a fleet of dirigibles would spur trade.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce J. Monroe Johnson, a lighter-than-air travel expert, tonight said he had received "great encouragement" that congress would enact legislation at this session providing dirigible subsidies. He said that only two Zepplins would be needed to initiate the service.

Flags, Drapes Taken By Souvenir Hunters

Souvenir hunters are the same in Atlanta as they are all over the world — no respecters of things, events or time.

So observed Virgil W. Shepard, decorator, of 21 Courtland street, as he reported theft of five red and white drapes, technically known as "star centers," and a large American flag from the platform used yesterday at the inauguration of Governor Rivers.

Shepard said the decorations, valued at $15, were taken early yesterday morning, a short time after they had been put in place. Other decorations were set up.

RIVERS PARTY GIVEN HIGH PLACE OF HONOR IN INAUGURAL PARADE

Georgians To March in First Section of First Division at Roosevelt Induction.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Governor E. D. Rivers and his official party have been assigned a high place of honor in President Roosevelt's inaugural parade here January 20. The Governor of Georgia and his party will be in the first section of the first division immediately behind Pennsylvania's party and the army band.

While the state's congressional delegation is prepared to give a warm welcome to their friends from Georgia, their inability to secure enough tickets for the inaugural address is causing them no end of worry and embarrassment. Not more than six tickets will be awarded to each member of the house and already each member has demands far exceeding the supply.

Ordinarily constituents believe their congressman can secure them preferred seats by merely filing applications, but space in the limited temporary stands erected on the east front of the capitol is so scarce that not even cabinet members and senators can get accommodations for all their friends.

F. D. R. OFFERS PLAN FOR REORGANIZATION

Time to attract able men to key posts. That the President be provided with six additional assistants to act as a liaison between himself and the departments, to "keep him in closer and easier touch with the widespread affairs of administration and to make for speedier clearance of the knowledge needed for executive decisions."

That provision be made for strengthening the managerial agencies of the government, with special reference to planning, the budget, personnel and efficiency research.

Opposition Takes Shape

Congressional opposition which took no account of party lines made itself apparent as soon as the message had been read. Tonight, it appeared to be heading up behind Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, the chairman of a special committee which has been studying reorganization.

It was apparent at once that the rift was the result of approaching the task of reorganization from two differing viewpoints. Byrd and many more on Capitol Hill were anxious to eliminate many of the present agencies and effect a saving of "several hundred million a year."

Mr. Roosevelt placed the first emphasis upon efficiency of operation and co-ordinating the many activities of the government under the fewest possible number of responsible administrative heads. Savings would be incidental. At an explanatory press conference yesterday, the chief executive estimated them at a maximum of $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 annually. In addition to the message, the reorganization recommendation that Congress should pass the President's recommendations:

"1. Expand the White House staff so that the President may have a sufficient group of able assistants in his office."

"2. Strengthen and develop the managerial agencies of the government."

"3. Extend the merit system upward, outward, and downward to cover practically all non-policy-determining posts; reorganize the civil service system as a part of management under a single, responsible administrator, and create a citizen board to serve as the watchdog of the merit system, and increase the salaries of key posts throughout the service so that the government may attract and hold in a career service men and women of ability and character."

"4. Overhaul the 100 independent agencies, administrations, authorities, boards and commissions, and place them by executive order within one of the other of the following 12 major executive departments: State, Treasury, war, justice, postoffice, navy, conservation, the present interior department, agriculture, commerce, labor, social welfare, and public works, and place upon the executive continuing responsibility for the maintenance of effective organization."

"5. Establish accountability of the executive to the Congress by providing for a genuine independent post-audit of all fiscal transactions by an auditor general, and restore to the executive complete responsibility for accounts and current transactions."

The President expressed the hope Congress would pass the suggested reorganization this session, but said the entire plan could not be made effective for two or three years.

New Cabinet Posts

Although specific consolidations were left for future determination, the proposed Department of Social Welfare conceivably might embrace the Independent Social Security Board and the Federal Health Service now under the treasury.

John G. Winant, former Republican governor of New Hampshire and present chairman of the Social Security Board, was mentioned by some for the post of administrator. So was Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator.

Should the public works post take in relief, Hopkins also was mentioned for this assignment. The present public works administrator is Secretary of the Interior, who under the reorganization probably would head the new Department of Conservation.

In transferring commissions and boards to regular departments, the President told the press, such agencies would continue their present judicial functions, like the Interstate Commerce Commission in fixing railroad rates, but would be responsible administratively to the new department and the President.

TEETHING IS A TOUGH JOB

"I'm sure glad I've got a smart mamma. She knows just what to do when I suffer those little fits that come along so often when a baby like me is teething. She keeps TEEBINA handy and gives it to me when I'm temporarily constipated and when gas or a sour stomach make me have the colic, or when a febrile diet makes me run off my bowels. TEEBINA is tops with me, because it tastes pleasant, and mamma says it costs only 30c the box of 12 powders. My drug store man always keeps a big supply."

Clark Howell Sr. Is Paid Magnificent Tribute in Prayer by Thousands at Inaugural

Standing with bared heads the thousands who gathered at the inauguration of Governor Rivers yesterday offered up a silent prayer in tribute to the memory of Clark Howell Sr., president and editor of The Constitution and for nearly 30 years Georgia's Democratic national committeeman.

Part of the huge throng is shown here paying the remarkable tribute.

Text of Roosevelt's Message On Government Reorganization

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's government reorganization message to Congress today follows:

I address this message to the Congress as one who had had experience as a legislator, as a subordinate in an executive department, as the chief executive of a state and as one on whom, as President, the constitutional responsibility for the whole of the executive branch of the government has lain for four years.

Now that we are out of the trough of the depression, the time has come to set our house in order. The administrative management of the government needs overhauling. We are confronted not alone by new activities, some of them temporary in character, but also by the growth of the work of the government matching the growth of the nation over more than a generation.

Except for the enactment of the budget and accounting act of 1921, no extensive change in management has occurred since 1913 when the department of labor was established. The executive structure of the government is sadly out of date. I am not the first President to report to the Congress that antiquated machinery stands in the way of effective administration and of adequate control by the Congress. Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Woodrow Wilson and Herbert Hoover have all reported but not wholly successful efforts to deal with the problem. Committees of the Congress have also rendered distinguished service to the nation through their efforts from time to time to point the way to improvement of governmental management and organization.

The opportunity and the need for action now comes to you and me. If we have faith in our Republican form of government, and in the ideals upon which it has rested for 150 years, we must devote ourselves energetically and courageously to the task of making that government efficient. The great stake in efficient Democracy is the stake of the common man.

In these troubled years of world history, a self-government can not long survive unless that government is an effective and efficient agency to serve mankind and carry out the will of the nation. A government without good management is a house built on sand.

In striving together to make our government more efficient, you and I are taking up in our generation the battle to preserve that freedom of self-government which our forefathers fought to establish and hand down to us. They struggled against tyranny, against non-representative controls, against government by birth, wealth or class, against sectionalism. Our struggle now is against confusion, against ineffectiveness, against waste, against inefficiency. This battle, too, must be won, or unless it is, the government will be a mere puppet in the hands of a few men.

Will it be said "Democracy was a great dream, but it could not do the job?" Or shall we here and now, without further delay, make it our business to see that our American Democracy is made efficient so that it will do the job that is required of it by the events of our time?

The committee does not spare the controller general for his failure to give the Congress a prompt and complete audit each year, totally independent of administration, as a means of holding the executive truly to account; nor for his unconstitutional assumption of executive power; nor for the failure to keep the accounting system of the government up to date to serve as the basis of information, management and control.

The committee criticizes the use of boards and commissions in administration, condemns the careless use of "corporations" as governmental instrumentalities, and points out that the practice of creating independent regulatory commissions, who perform administrative work in addition to judicial work threatens to develop a "fourth branch" of the government for which there is no sanction in the constitution. Nor does the committee spare the inadequacy of the civil service system.

5-POINT PROGRAM RECOMMENDATIONS

To meet this situation and bring our administrative management up to date, the committee presents an integrated five-point program which you will find set out in its report. It includes these major recommendations:

1. Expand the White House staff so that the President may have a sufficient group of able assistants in his own office to keep him in closer and easier touch with the widespread affairs of administration, and to make the speedier clearance of the knowledge needed for executive decisions;

2. Strengthen and develop the managerial agencies of the government, particularly those dealing with the budget and efficiency research, with personnel and with planning, as management-arms of the chief executive; extend the merit system upward, outward, and downward to cover practically all non-policy-determining posts; reorganize the civil service system as a part of management under a single, responsible administrator, and create a citizen board to serve as the watchdog of the merit system, and increase the salaries of key posts throughout the service so that the government may attract and hold in a career service men and women of ability and character;

4. Overhaul the 100 independent agencies, administrations, authorities, boards, and commissions, and place them by executive order within one of the other of the following 12 major executive departments: State, treasury, war, justice, postoffice, navy, conservation, agriculture, commerce, labor, social welfare, and public works; and place upon the executive continuing responsibility for the maintenance of effective organization;

5. Establish accountability of the executive to the Congress by providing for a genuine independent post-audit of all fiscal transactions by an auditor general, and restore to the executive complete responsibility for accounts and current transactions.

PROGRAM RESTS UPON CONSTITUTION
As you will see, this program rests solidly upon the constitution and upon the American way of doing things. There is nothing in it which is revolutionary, as every element is drawn from our own experience either in government or large-scale business.

I endorse this program and feel confident that it will commend itself to you also with your knowledge of government, and to the vast majority of the citizens of the country who want and believe in efficient self-government.

No important advance can be made toward the major objectives of the program without the passage by the Congress of the necessary legislation.

It will be necessary to provide for the establishment of two new departments, a department of social welfare and a department of public works, for the assignment by the President of all the miscellaneous activities to the 12 major departments thus provided, for reorganization of the civil service system, for modernizing and strengthening the managerial agencies of the executive, and for making the executive more strictly accountable to the Congress.

The remaining elements of the five-point program, though they must await your action on the basic legislation, may be initiated through appropriations and executive orders.

In placing this program before you I realize that it will be said that I am recommending the increase of the powers of the presidency. This is not true. The presidency as established in the constitution of the United States has all of the powers that are required. In spite of timid souls in 1787 who feared effective government the presidency was established as a single strong chief executive office in which was vested the entire executive power of the national government, even as the legislative power was placed in the Congress and the judicial in the Supreme Court. What I am pleading before you is not the request for more power, but for the tools of management and the authority to distribute the work so that the President can effectively discharge those powers which the constitution now places upon him. Unless we are prepared to abandon this important part of the constitution, we must equip the presidency with authority commensurate with its responsibilities under the constitution.

CO-OPERATION OF CONGRESS ASKED
The committee on administrative management, after a careful examination of recent attempts to reorganize the government and of state reorganizations carried out so ably by Governor Frank O. Landon in Illinois, Governor Alfred E. Smith in New York, Governor Harry F. Byrd in Virginia, Governor William Tudor Gardiner in Maine, and by other governors, accepts the view held by my distinguished predecessors that the detailed work of reorganization is, as President Theodore Roosevelt said over 30 years ago, "essentially executive in its nature."

The committee accordingly recommends that reorganization should be a continuing duty and authority of the chief executive on the basis of standards set by the Congress. To make this safe, the committee insists, however, that the Congress keep a watchful eye upon reorganization both through the annual budget and through the maintenance of strict executive accountability to the Congress under the independent audit of all financial transactions by an auditor general. Under the proposed plan the Congress must by law establish the major departments and determine in advance the general principles which shall guide the President in distributing the work of the government among these departments, and in this task the President is to act on the basis of careful research by the Bureau of the Budget and after conference with those primarily affected. Reorganization is not a mechanical task, but a human task, because government is not a machine, but a living organism. With these clear safeguards, and in view of our past muddling with reorganization, one cannot but accept the logic and wisdom of the recommendations.

I would not have you adopt this five-point program, however, without realizing that this represents an important step in American history. If we do this, we reduce from over 100 down to a dozen the operating executive agencies of the government, and we bring many little bureaucracies under broad co-ordinated democratic authority.

But in so doing, we shall know that we are going back to the constitution, and giving to the executive branch modern tools of management and an up-to-date organization which will enable the government to go forward efficiently. We can prove to the world that American government is both democratic and effective.

In this program I invited your co-operation, and pledge myself to deal energetically and promptly with the executive responsibilities of reorganization and administrative management, when you shall have made this possible by the necessary legislation.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

STRUCTURE OF CABINET UNCHANGED SINCE '13

4 Departments Are Older Than Government Under Constitution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—If Congress sets up new departments of social welfare and public works as President Roosevelt suggests today, it will be the first enlargement of the cabinet since 1913.

The Department of Labor was separated from the Commerce Department and placed on its own feet at that time.

Four of the 10 present departments are older than the government under the constitution.

The departments of "foreign affairs," the treasury, postoffice and war were established by early Congresses—the postoffice department by the Congress of 1789 before the Declaration of Independence.

The first Congress under the constitution re-established these, changing the name of the postoffice department to that of the department of commerce.

GEORGIANS TO RETAIN ALL COMMITTEE POSTS

Slate Will Be Submitted To Democratic Caucus in House Today.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Reapportionment of all Georgia congressmen to their former committee assignments is provided for in the new committee slate worked out by the ways and means committee, which is to be submitted to a caucus of house Democrats for approval tomorrow.

Representative Vinson, of Milledgeville, dean of the delegation, today said the ways and means slate also would place Representative Stephen Pace, of Americus, new member from the third district, on the military affairs committee, one of the major committees of the house. Representative Vinson, of Milledgeville, dean of the delegation, today said the ways and means slate also would place Representative Stephen Pace, of Americus, new member from the third district, on the military affairs committee, one of the major committees of the house.

Representative Vinson will continue as chairman of the important naval affairs committee, a post he has held ever since the Democrats captured control of the house six years ago.

Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Atlanta, likewise will remain chairman of the civil service body, to which he succeeded by the last session.

Committee posts of other Georgia members as approved by the ways and means body are:

Representative E. E. Cox, of Camilla, rules; Representative Malcolm C. Tarver, of Dalton, appropriations; Representative Paul Brown, of Elberton, banking and currency; Representative Frank Wheeler, of Gainesville, postoffice and post roads; Representative Braswell Deen, of Alma, education, patents and war claims.

Two additional chairmanships are held by the state's two representatives on the senate side. Senator Walter F. George continues as head of the privileges and elections body, while Senator Richard R. Russell Jr. has just been named the chairman of the senate immigration committee.

BOARD MEMBERS NAMED.
GREENSBORO, Ga., Jan. 12.—(AP)—T. H. McGibony has been named chairman of the Greene County Board of Commissioners. He succeeds G. R. Brook on the commission. L. L. Wyatt, W. D. Taylor and J. A. Smith all were re-elected to the board.

to accept the political philosophy in the President's message."

Republican Leader McNary, of the Senate—"The message struck me as rather indefinite. I was not awfully impressed."

Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska—"A very interesting subject worthy of much consideration."

Senator George, Democrat, Georgia—"I am in thorough accord."

Senator Johnson, Republican, California—"Generally speaking, I am in hearty agreement."

Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, chairman of a senate committee on reorganization—"A mere regrouping does not mean either simplification or economy."

House Democratic Leader Rayburn—"It is a good idea along general lines and it ought to be put into effect for the sake of efficiency and economy."

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho—"I see no savings in sight."

Chairman Buchanan, Democrat, Texas, of the house appropriations committee—"I want to give the President whatever assistance he needs."

"... We've already killed three presidents."

NANKING GOVERNMENT ASKS CHIANG KAI-SHEK TO RETURN TO POWER

Appeal to Generalissimo Inspired by Menace of Communism.

NANKING, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The government appealed tonight to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek to return to active leadership of the nation and take charge of efforts to settle disturbances in northwest China which threatened large scale Communist-inspired revolt against Nanking.

General Chiang, who was at his birthplace, Fenghua, Chekiang province, since January 2 on a month's vacation to recuperate from the effects of his kidnapping and two weeks' detention at Sianfu, Shensi province, last month.

Recently the situation in Sianfu, one of an uprising led by Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, December 12 and of the generalissimo's imprisonment, has become so ominous that large government forces have been concentrating in western Honan and eastern Shensi to deal with any further rebellion.

Fraternizing With Reds. Troops of General Yang Hu-cheng, Shensi military chief, and soldiers formerly of Marshal Chang's command have made increasingly close contact with the formidable Chinese Communist concentrations in northern Shensi and Kansu province, threatening new disorders in Sianfu and defiance of Nanking.

Marshal Chang himself is here, having flown here after the generalissimo's release Christmas Day to take his punishment. He was sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment, but pardoned.

A Domei (Japanese) News Agency dispatch at Shanghai said government troops already had clashed with Shensi Rebels 50 miles northeast of Sianfu, and the Rebels had been forced to retreat.

Although supposedly resting from the cares of office, Generalissimo Chiang is known to have conferred already at Fenghua with an emissary from General Yang, of Shensi, who is believed to be on his way back to Sianfu by air.

To Break Silence Soon. Officials here believed General Chiang would break his silence shortly to give Nanking directions as to how to deal with the threat of revolt in the northwest.

Nanking officials, however, took the position the questions of Marshal Chang and his former subordinate, General Yang, must be considered separately. The latter recently reported to have declared himself dictator of Shensi. He is believed to have disagreed with Marshal Chang even during the December coup, and their differences are believed to have increased since the marshal came to Nanking.

The government continued to prepare for the worst in the northwest. Thousands of troops and large quantities of munitions were being shipped into western Honan.

PLAYWRIGHT TO SELL GEORGIA RESIDENCE

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Playwright Eugene O'Neill plans to look around for a northern California home when he leaves a hospital here in a week or so.

O'Neill, convalescing from an appendectomy at the same hospital where his wife is recovering from a severe cold, said:

"We're selling our home in Georgia. We're planning to settle around here. Perhaps we'll get a sheep ranch and evict the sheep."

He has been gathering material for a new dramatic venture—a cycle of eight plays on the fortunes of an American family.

He termed the federal theater project "the most significant development in the current American stage."

Eugene O'Neill's Georgia home is situated on Sea Island and is regarded as one of the handsomest homes there.

The noted author has visited the time there within the last few years and many of his plays are said to have been written there. O'Neill was regarded as a recluse, being seldom seen away from home.

H. EVERETT ANDERSON TO BE BURIED AT SALEM

Why Laxatives Fail In Stubborn Constipation

Twelve to 24 hours is too long to wait when relief from clogged bowels and constipation is needed, for then enormous quantities of bacteria accumulate, causing GAS, indigestion and many restless, sleepless nights.

If you want REAL, QUICK RELIEF, take a liquid cathartic such as Adia. Adia contains SEVEN cathartic and emollient ingredients that act on the stomach and BOTH bowels.

Most "overnight" laxatives contain one ingredient that acts on the lower bowel only.

Adia's DOUBLE ACTION gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out all poisonous waste matter that may have caused GAS and sour stomach, headaches and sleepless nights for months.

Adia's RELAXING STOMACH GAS at once and usually removes bowel congestion in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight results. This famous treatment has been recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years. Take Adia one-half hour before breakfast or one hour before bedtime and in a short while you will feel marvellously refreshed.

FRANCE ASKS BRITAIN FOR FULL BLOCKADE

Would Act on Land and Sea; Paris and Berlin Discuss Commerce.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The French government has suggested to Great Britain that immediate measures be taken on land and sea to prevent dispatch of "volunteers" and munitions to Spain, authorized sources asserted tonight. Britain had earlier denied a Russian request of similar character.

These informants said France has told the British government strict control should be established immediately over all possible ports of departure and along the ship lanes to the Iberian peninsula by which "volunteers" of other lands might join the forces of either side.

France also proposed, it was stated, that all points of entry into Spain on the French and Portuguese frontiers be blocked.

Failure of the Valencia government to accept fully the plan drawn up by the International Nonintervention Committee in London, to place international commissions on Spanish soil to prevent arms and foreign recruits from reaching the combatants, was given as the chief reason for France's suggestions.

The government announced it will introduce a bill in parliament Thursday which will give Premier Leon Blum power to halt the flow of "volunteers" into Spain. The measure is believed likely to deprive all French advisers indicated tonight.

BERLIN REPORTS TALKS

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—(AP)—France and Germany soon may get together to effect closer economic relations and work out a European peace program, reliable sources indicated tonight.

The French ambassador, Andre Francois-Poncet, and the Reich economic minister, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, already were agreed that understanding is desirable between the two nations, high official sources divulged.

Schacht will go to Paris January 16 to lay the cornerstone of a German exposition building, and perhaps to renew discussion of economic rapprochement.

Schacht and Francois-Poncet are agreed in principle, high sources said, to the desirability of understanding on trade relations, colonial distribution, armaments control, and general co-operation for preservation of European peace.

Colonel General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, co-ordinator of the Nazi four-year plan for self-sufficiency, was believed also to figure in the program through a visit to Premier Benito Mussolini.

Goering was expected to discuss developments with Mussolini, to make certain Italy was sympathetic to the possibility of an economic alliance between France and Germany.

Goering departed for Rome tonight, accompanied by Mrs. Goering and a secretary. The Italian salon car, attached to the Rome express at Premier Mussolini's instructions, was filled with flowers in honor of Goering's 44th birthday anniversary.

EDEN SAYS SPAIN WILL SETTLE OWN FATE

LONDON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden predicted in an address tonight neither Communism nor Fascism will gain a permanent foothold in Spain. He spoke to the Foreign Press Association.

Eden declared Britain has and will continue to discourage foreign intervention in Spain.

The Iberian nation, he asserted, inevitably will evolve its own form of government and the less the foreigner interferes, the shorter the time will be.

"We do not believe in conflict," he said at another point. "We believe in co-operation. Unless there is political confidence there can be no real economic recovery in Europe."

Least other nations gain the impression she is growing soft, however, Eden reminded them Britain now is rearming at a rapid pace.

"We are now engaged in rearmament on a considerable, indeed a formidable scale," he said. "In time it must impose a strain upon our national finances and national prosperity, as it is already doing elsewhere. Yet no other policy is open to us in a rapidly rearming world."

"We definitely prefer better to guns, and we are prepared to do our best by economic co-operation to secure

HOME TAX EXEMPTION SOUGHT FOR GEORGIA

Proposed Bills Will Lift Assessments Off Owner-Occupied Properties.

Exemption of owner-occupied homes up to the value of $5,000 and personal property to the extent of $300 are purposes of companion bills the Richmond county delegation will introduce in the general assembly this week.

Both bills provide for submitting constitutional amendments to voters of the state late this spring at the same time that plans call for submitting an old-age pension amendment.

Ratification at such an election would permit the exemptions to become effective December 31, 1937. Exemptions in both bills would apply to all state, county, municipal and school district ad valorem taxes, except that taxation could continue for the purpose of paying any bonds outstanding at the time the amendments passed.

Signed by Speaker Roy V. Harris and Representatives Wilmer D. Lanier and William K. Barrett, the home-tax exemption bill provides that any property within city limits eligible for the exemption must be in one tract. Lanier explained this qualification by saying the owner of more than one piece of residential property could claim exemption only on that property he occupies as a home.

In rural districts, the exemption would apply to a home and a maximum of 50 acres of land. The owner of a 200-acre home tract thus would be liable to taxation on 150 acres.

In either event, the property "shall be used solely as a homestead . . . and for no other purpose." An enabling act which the legislature would have to pass after adoption of the amendment would set forth in detail uses of property disqualifying it for exemption.

The $300 personal property exemption would apply to "the owner of personal property, also every guardian or trustee of minor children, and also to executor of an estate or persons having the care and support of dependent females of any age, including all clothing, household or kitchen furniture and other personal property."

70 Prisoners Freed Because Jail Is Full

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Because the city jail is full, Judge Martin Fleming said, "beyond human capacity," and the city workhouse is jammed to capacity, 70 prisoners have been pardoned by the judge and Police Commissioner Eugene J. Bryan.

Chief of Police Ray Bryan said the "housecleaning" left only about 20 prisoners in custody today.

Plans for a new jail and courtroom, a $80,000 PWA project, have been approved but the grant is being held up by a deadlock involving all new federal projects in Washington.

TOBACCO CONFERENCE TO BE HELD AT TIFTON

TIFTON, Ga., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Latest production methods are scheduled to be discussed at a state-wide meeting of tobacco growers here Friday.

W. S. Brown, acting director of the State Agricultural Experiment Service, said more than 600 farmers are expected to attend.

"We have planned the program so as to give tobacco growers as much practical information as possible about the latest recommended practices in growing tobacco," he said.

J. M. Carr and J. G. Gaines, co-operative agents of the United States Department of Agriculture and the Coastal Plains Experiment Station, will explain the latest findings on tobacco fertilization and disease.

J. M. Purdon, tobacco authority, will speak on "Some Things I Have Learned About Growing Tobacco," and Garbett, bishop of Winchester, will discuss "The Tobacco Problem."

The meeting will open at the court house here at 10:30 a. m., E. S. T., (9:30 Atlanta time).

Important Pawn in Moroccan Maneuvers

The Sultan of Morocco, Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef, whose country is now the seat of Europe's most recent war fear. Any move to curtail the efforts of Germany in Morocco by France will be taken in his name. The Sultan would probably issue a decree asking the French, who hold a protectorate over his country, to act for him. However, Hitler's assurance to France that he has no designs on Spanish Morocco has, temporarily at least, ended threat of conflict over the issue.

MEASURE OFFERED TO BAR RECRUITING

Bill Would Deprive Those Fighting Abroad of Citizenship.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Chairman Dickstein, Democrat, New York, of the house immigration committee, said today it was a "known fact" that "the German embassies and consulates have been approaching Germans of American birth and Germans that have been naturalized to sign up as volunteers in their army."

He made the assertion in a statement announcing introduction of a resolution to cancel the citizenship of native-born or naturalized Americans of their fought in foreign wars.

Dickstein said Spanish Loyalists and Italy during her war with Ethiopia also had attempted to recruit Americans.

GROVE PARK CIVIC BODY HEARS JOHN A. BOYKIN

Pointing out the great inroads made by crime in this country, Solicitor General John A. Boykin last night urged parents to "teach their children proper respect for law and order."

Speaking at the first 1937 meeting of the Grove Park Civic League, in the auditorium of the Leas H. Cox school, Mr. Boykin praised the group as a "constructive factor in community life."

He stated that patriotism was an essential need.

E. E. Reid, president of the league, presided. Plans for the year were outlined, and committees will be appointed. W. A. Jones, chairman of the sidewalk committee, reported progress in plans for sidewalk improvement in the Grove Park section.

ROMEO AND JULIET IS SUPERBLY DONE

Thalberg's Film Version Opens on Screen at Loew's Grand Theater.

A visually beautiful and sincerely acted cinema version of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" was unfolded yesterday afternoon on the screen of Loew's Grand theater, opening a special three-day engagement.

It is a film far above the ordinary, with admirable direction of George Cukor, eye-compelling settings, excellent camera work, intriguing music, and a cast which carries the immortal story to a high point of artistry.

In the title roles are Norma Shearer, as Juliet, and Leslie Howard as Romeo. Miss Shearer looks all that Juliet should look, and speaks her lines with sincerity and conviction. Howard plays his role with feeling and finish.

In the supporting cast are Basil Rathbone, as Tybalt, the quick fighting champion of the House of Capulet; John Barrymore, as Mercutio, giving one of the best screen performances of his career; Edna May Oliver, as Juliet's nurse; Henry Kolker, as Friar Laurence; C. Aubrey Smith, as Lord Capulet; Andy Devine, as Peter, bringing comedy relief that adds greatly to the film's entertainment; Ralph Forbes, as Paris; Reginald Denny, as two-listed Benvolio; Maurice Murphy, as Balthasar; Conway Tearle, veteran of the silent screen, as the stern Prince of Verona; Robert Warwick, as the proud Lord Montague; Virginia Hammond, as Lady Montague; and Violet Kemble Cooper, as Lady Capulet.

Shakespeare's word magic and the broad scope of the camera make a happy combination. The famous balcony scene, in which the ardent and poetic Romeo wooed the love-awakened Juliet, is one of the best moments of the film.

Barrymore deserves a special note of praise for his full-blooded portrayal of the lusty Mercutio. He is much at home in a Shakespearean role, and was wisely cast in this worthwhile production, the work of the late Irving Thalberg. It is another celluloid monument to his genius.—L. F.

Tigner-Blackman Wedding Date Chosen Because of Sentiment

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Mrs. J. Hope Tigner was the former Carrie Ellison Cook, of Barnesville, and Mrs. W. Wilbur Blackman was the former Marion Lewis and lived in Brooklyn, little did they dream that when they married they would gravitate to Atlanta, and would celebrate their birthday anniversaries with so much sentiment attached to the date—that of January 12.

At a quiet ceremony taking place at high noon yesterday, their children, Janette Tigner and Wilbur Blackman, were married in St. Mark Methodist church. The bride and groom chose the most auspicious date in their young lives to coincide with the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. Tigner and Mrs. Blackman, who are greatly flattered by this marked attention from their daughter and son.

Janette's engagement ring is one of the most beautiful Sally Forth has glimpsed in a long time. Set in platinum, two exquisite diamond solitaires form a large square, which is encircled on either side by baguette diamonds. Janette and Wilbur have been sweethearts for several years and, although their engagement never was formally announced, their friends were cognizant of their devotion to one another. Three weeks ago when they were motoring around Atlanta to look at the illuminated Christmas trees, Wilbur reached for Janette's hand and slipped the gorgeous ring upon her finger. Needless to say, neither Janette or Wilbur gazed upon any more yuletide decorations that evening.

BETTY GREGG's hosts of Atlanta admirers are rejoicing over the good news that she will prolong her stay here until early spring. Sally Forth was afraid that after Betty's marvelous debut season she would take her departure with her mother, Mrs. Robert Gregg, when she returns on January 15 to New York to join Mr. Gregg, where they make their permanent home.

During the next fortnight, Betty will visit her cousin, Mrs. Arthur Howell, at her Pace's Ferry road home, and afterward she will journey to Auburn, Ala., to attend the midwinter dances at Auburn University.

While in Alabama Betty will go to Birmingham to visit her close friend, Katherine Crawford, who came to Atlanta last November to attend Betty's coming-out party at the Driving Club.

When Betty returns to Atlanta the middle of February, she will visit her maternal uncle, Frank Adair, during Mrs. Adair's absence on a trip around the world.

FRANK LOOMIS has a good joke on some friends of his who went on a hunting trip recently. They told Frank of their plans, and promised to share with him some of the turkeys and other game they caught. While they were gone, however, Frank received a frantic call from Julia, the maid at Mrs. Thomas Kenan's (Frank's mother-in-law), saying that a turkey had come into their yard and was now in the top of a tree. Frank and his wife, Sarah, hurried over to the Kenan residence, and there they discovered a huge turkey perched on a limb in a tall tree. With one shot Frank killed the bird.

Mrs. Kenan inquired about the neighborhood in the effort to find the owner of the turkey, but without success. So Julia set right into plucking the feathers and dressing it for dinner. But just as she was about to place the fowl in the oven, the doorbell rang and the turkey was claimed. But Frank can still say to his friends who returned empty-handed from their hunting trip that he caught a turkey, and right in the front yard, too.

CREATING much interest is the announcement of the engagement of lovely Clyde Elizabeth Smith, of Augusta, and William Lowndes Walthour, of Atlanta, which was the home of the bride-to-be until her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dan Smith, moved to Augusta last June from Tubman High school in Augusta, the bride-elect returned to Atlanta to spend several months among her former friends. The groom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Walthour Sr., and he and his bride will live here after their marriage.

Miss Helen Arline Weds Dr. A. A. Rush. Miss Helen Virginia Arline became the bride of Dr. Augustus A. Rush at a ceremony performed Monday morning at the Glenn Memorial church by Rev. Nat G. Long and witnessed by the members of the two families and a few close friends of the couple.

Mrs. Rush is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Madison Arline of Atlanta and Bainbridge. She attended Brenau College, where she was a member of the Alpha Theta sorority, chairman of the Phi Gamma Mu National Honor Society, president of the Georgia Club and the All-State English and president of Phi Beta Sigma scholastic society.

Dr. Rush is the son of Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Rush, of Meridian, Miss. He attended Emory University and obtained his degree in medicine in 1934. He was an interne at Emory University and Grady hospital, and is now practicing medicine in Meridian, where he and his bride will live.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird Will Give Dinner

An interesting social event of Wednesday, January 29, will be the dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bird will entertain at 7 o'clock at the Capital City Club. Guests will include a group of friends of the hosts.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird and their attractive young daughters, Misses Betty Ann Bird and Louise Bird will leave the first of March for Dallas, Texas, where they will reside in future. Their departure is a matter of sincere regret as Mr. and Mrs. Bird and their young daughters are exceeding popular in social circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird and their daughters reside on Valley road in the fashionable northside section of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Dodd are recently installed as worthy matron and worthy patron of Oakland City Chapter No. 260, O. E. S., at a meeting held at Oakland City Masonic temple. The room was decorated with flowers and red tapers glowing in silver candelabra. The program was arranged by Miss Evelyn Silverman and E. W. Parham, the retiring worthy matron and worthy patron.

Installing officers were Mrs. Julia Jackson Turner, past grand matron of the grand chapter of Georgia, O. E. S., as grand installing officer; Mrs. Estie Hanson as grand marshal; Mrs. Algernia Baker, grand secretary; Ed Johnson, grand chaplain, and Mrs. Kate Massey, grand organizer.

Officers installed were Mrs. Ethel Dodd, worthy matron; Harris Dodd, worthy patron; Mrs. Bernice Williams, associate matron; Albert McGee, associate patron; Miss Selma Adair, secretary; Mrs. Aline Haskins, treasurer; Mrs. Mary Jones, conductress; Mrs. Ruth Flynn, associate conductress; Miss Maude Baker, Ada; Mrs. Lora Blackstock, Ruth; Miss Verna Settles, Esther; Mrs. Louise Morris, Martha; Mrs. Mattie Friedland, Dora; Mrs. Stella Warren, Mary; Mrs. Marjorie Milam, marshal; Mrs. Kate Massey, organist; Mrs. Essie Zimmerman, warden, and Fain Albitt, sentinel.

Little Miss Mary Dodd, daughter of the worthy matron, presented her mother with flowers when Mrs. Ruby Bethel sang, and Mary Dodd opened the white gates in the east as her mother and father were escorted to the east.

Miss Evelyn Silverman and Mr. Parham were presented jewels from the grand chapter in appreciation of the valuable and untiring service rendered during the year, and were the recipients of a number of gifts.

A successful and enjoyable year has been experienced by Oakland City chapter, and an equally good one is predicted for 1937 under the able leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Dodd, and Mrs. Dodd as the recipient of gifts from her friends, and a gavel gift of her parents.

Brilliant Reception Given at Executive Mansion And Festive Ball Mark Governor's Inauguration

Mr. E. D. Rivers, first lady of Georgia, is pictured in the center, and on her right is Mrs. John B. Spivey, of Swainsboro, wife of the state senate's president. Mrs. Roy V. Harris, of Augusta, wife of the speaker of Georgia's house of representatives, appears at Mrs. Rivers' left. The trio were photographed at the inaugural reception given yesterday afternoon at the executive mansion in Ansley Park, at which they were assisted in receiving by their distinguished husbands. The reception was followed by a brilliant ball held last evening at the Shrine Mosque, both occasions assembling hundreds of prominent Georgians who came to Atlanta for the inauguration exercises.

Brilliant in every detail was the inaugural reception at which Governor and Mrs. E. D. Rivers were the distinguished guests given yesterday afternoon at the executive mansion in Ansley Park, the occasion assembling hundreds of prominent Atlantans and citizens throughout the state who were in the city for the inauguration of Georgia's chief executive.

The lower floor of the handsome graystone mansion was elaborately decorated for the occasion, the honor guests receiving in the drawing room before a bank of palms and flowering foliage plants. Standing in the receiving line with Governor and Mrs. Rivers were John B. Spivey, president of the state senate, and Mrs. Spivey, of Swainsboro; Roy V. Harris, speaker of the house of representatives, and Mrs. Harris, of Augusta; Lieutenant Commander Andrew A. Smith, naval aide to the newly-elected governor, and Mrs. Smith, of Savannah; Colonel W. Fred Scott, chief of Governor Rivers' military staff, and Mrs. Scott, of Thomsville, and Judge and Mrs. Virginia Polhill Price, of Louisville, Ga., Georgia national Democratic committeewoman.

Mrs. Rivers' gown. The guests were presented to the chief executive and Mrs. Rivers by Adjutant General Jack Stoddard, who stood at the head of the receiving line. Mrs. Rivers was handsomely attired in a gown of twilight blue crepe fashion, a tunic style. Made with short puffed sleeves the bodice of the lovely gown featured the modish broad shoulder effect. A sash of matching silk fringe was the gown's only trimming and on her left shoulder she wore a cluster of deep purple orchids.

Mrs. Spivey wore a gown of black satin and her shoulder spray was formed of gardenias. Mrs. Harris wore a gown of light-colored roses fringed with velvet. The famous silver service, which was used on the Battle of Georgia, and which has graced the state's inaugural receptions for a long number of years, adorned one end of the beautifully appointed table presided over by Mrs. Ed Rivers Jr. and Miss Jerry Rivers, daughters of the chief executive and Mrs. Rivers. Assisting as hostesses at the reception were committees appointed from the Atlanta Woman's Club and the Woman's Chamber of Commerce of Georgia's capital city. The former organization was represented by Mrs. W. F. Melton, president of the club, and Mesdames Alma G. Maxwell, Fred C. Hove, Scott Allen and James B. McNeely. Mrs. Sarah H. Mosteller, president of the Woman's Chamber, was assisted from her organization by Mesdames Howard Partillo, H. A.

Moncrief-Merkle Rites Announced

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ky., Jan. 12. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Raymond Moncrief, of Rochester, N. Y., and Atlanta, Ga., announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Howard Schaeffer Merkle, of Cincinnati, Ohio, which took place on Saturday, December 19, in Williamstown, Ky.

The bride is a descendant of a long line of well-known southern families. Her paternal grandparents were the late David Edwin Moncrief and Elizabeth Helen Eberhardt Moncrief, of Atlanta, and her maternal grandparents were the late Barton M. Hollis and Mary Ann Gresham Hollis, of Covington, Ga. She was born in Georgia, but moved to Cincinnati at an early age. She received her education in Cincinnati and at Duke University.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Merkle, of Cincinnati. He is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati, and is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. Mr. and Mrs. Merkle will reside in Cincinnati at 237 Loraine avenue.

Miss Rhorer and Dr. Claiborne Wed at Ceremony in Marietta, Ga.

MARIETTA, Ga., Jan. 12.—Centering social interest and marked by dignity and beauty was the marriage on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the St. James' Episcopal church of Miss Dorothy Rhorer, of this city, formerly of Atlanta, and Dr. Sterling Claiborne, of Boston, Mass., which was solemnized in the presence of a brilliant assemblage of relatives and friends. Mr. Randolph Claiborne, of Macon, brother of the groom, performed the impressive ceremony.

The historic church, of which the groom's father was rector for many years, was attractively decorated with palms and ferns banded around the altar. Eight seven-branched candelabra held white tapers and baskets of white gladioli beautified the altar. On each window ledge in the auditorium and in the balcony were arrangements of ferns and southern smilax, and candelabra held glowing tapers. Mrs. P. D. Reiser rendered the musical program and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. A. V. Corbitt.

Ushers were Drs. Tim Manson, of Chattanooga, and Floyd Hobbs, of Virginia, and Harry N. Dupre, Bassford Field and Wallace Montgomery, of Marietta. The matron of honor, Mrs. Wallace Montgomery, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids, Misses Lola Crawford, of Charlotte, N. C.; Lydia Hoke, of Atlanta, and Mary Emily Claiborne, sister of the groom, and Katharine Kennedy, of Marietta, were gowned alike. They wore green net, possibly over tulle, made along princess lines. The skirts were adorned with insets of tulle and were finished at the floor-length hemline with ruffles attached to the skirt in double-ruffled effect. The bodice was ruffled trimmed with a narrow band across the shoulder, and ruffled capes completed the costume. They carried round bouquets of greenery and white snapdragons tied with green satin ribbon.

The bride entered with her brother, Horace Rhorer, of Atlanta, by whom she was given in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the groom and the best man, Robert Willingham, of Marietta. The bride's blond beauty was accentuated by the dignity of her wedding gown of ivory satin, which closely fitted her slender figure. The gown was made with full-length train and a V-shaped cowl neckline and the sleeves were puffed at the wrist and ended in a point over the hand. Her tulle veil, belonging to Mrs. W. R. Massengale Jr., of Atlanta, and brought from Europe, was the "something borrowed" at the wedding. It fell in graceful folds the length of the train and was caught to the bride's blond hair in Juliette cap effect and the veil was ornamented with clusters of orange blossoms fastened at each side of the bride's head. She carried a round bouquet of valley lilies tied with white satin ribbon.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Montgomery, on Cherokee street. In the receiving line were Mrs. and Mrs. Wallace Montgomery, the bride party and Mrs. R. R. Claiborne, mother of the groom. The dining table, covered with a lace cloth, was centered with the five-tiered wedding cake, embossed in valley lilies, on each side of which were cornucopia-shaped crystal vases of snapdragons. Mrs. Horace Field poured coffee while Mrs. George F. Montgomery, on Cherokee street. In the receiving line were Mrs. and Mrs. Wallace Montgomery, the bride party and Mrs. R. R. INSTALLMENT I.

The sky, on that troubled night in 1921, was starless and angry, as angry as the heart of Ireland itself. Dublin was under martial law. Beneath the dim glare of street lamps the Black and Tans, bayonets slung across their shoulders, patrolled the narrow pavements, peering into the shadowy faces of the infrequent pedestrians.

In a shabby section of Dublin the blinds were drawn across the windows of a tobacconist's. Above the shop, in a room meagerly lit by two candles and bare of all save the crudest furnishings, a meeting was in progress. Here in the headquarters of the Irish Rebels, Commandant O'Brien, with his colleagues, Murphy and Donegal, worked feverishly, giving concise instructions to dispatch carriers bound for Cork and Limerick, Glengarriff and Killarney. Two thousand rounds of ammunition to Claremorris, another 250 to Cahir. Quickly the room was emptied of all save the three men. It was night, as soon as Dennis Riordan arrived, the attack on Templemore Barracks would be organized.

Suddenly the rumble of a lorry's heavy wheels on cobblestones froze the men to attention. A raid! With desperate haste they gathered up papers, snatched maps from the walls and put a lighted match to a pile of records. Murphy opened the door leading to the roof. The distant sounds of axes far above told them with sickening finality that their avenue of escape was cut off.

O'Brien shrugged. "Well, boys, it was bound to happen some day. . . . Grasping their hand grenades, they raised their right arms in a final salute.

"To the Cause and Dennis Riordan! May he live to see it through!" And soundlessly O'Brien's lips formed the words, "Cathleen, darlin'."

An explosion, quickly followed by another, more thunderous, blew the house and its occupants to atoms. In the street below the English military commander, Colonel Loder, stood watching the burning building, his face tense. He sighed and turned to his aide.

"And no sign of Dennis Riordan, as usual. What use are these blind raids when our intelligence service can't even describe the fellow?"

Behind them, unobserved in the small crowd which had gathered, a young man stood with his head bowed reverently. On his face was a look of intense but controlled emotion. For a moment he watched the blazing holocaust; then, moving his bicycle, he started off down the street.

At the door of the modest O'Brien house, he alighted. Inside were Cathleen O'Brien, Sean's young wife, and their eight-year-old son, Jerry. Half an hour later, having imparted his tragic news, his heart wrung by compassion and grief, he emerged.

Later that night in a room at Roman's hotel six men sat about a table. Dennis Riordan presiding. The men were Burke, Rooney, Casey and Callahan, the more fanatical of the group, and Ryan and Connor, the conservative members who sided with Dennis. Dennis was reading aloud an item in the evening paper. It was headed:

"Lord Athleigh and his daughter, the Lady Helen Drummond, who arrive from London tomorrow. Lord Athleigh's mission."

Burke burst out angrily, "I vote we make a demonstration tomorrow that will blow his lordship from the face of the earth and rock the very foundations of Ireland!"

Dennis frowned. "It would that," he said quietly. "That's why we'll not do it."

A chorus of protest and affirmation broke out among the men. Dennis raised his hand in authority, silencing them. As chief of staff, all decisions rested with him, and his decision had been made.

"Quiet, men! It is not for us to make war on the diplomatic representative of another country. We are not a handful of bloody conspirators in a free people. Remember that! Lord Athleigh comes with clean hands and we will receive him with clean hands."

But on the same transport with Lord Athleigh's daughter, the Lady Helen Drummond, was another matter entirely. With Patrick Callahan, the military leader, Dennis discussed plans for the disposition of the munitions.

On the deck of the transport Lord Athleigh, a dignified, kindly man in his sixties, stood at the rail and looked out at the dim and lovely Irish coastline. Beside him stood his daughter, Lady Helen Drummond. She was slight, pretty, and in her oval face two green eyes glowed with excited anticipation. A wireless was presented to Lord Athleigh by an attendant. It was from Sir John Alroyd, the viceroy, informing him that they were to remain on board overnight, and the munitions were to be landed instead. But half an hour later, when they sat at tea in the lounge, Gerald Preston, Lord Athleigh's aide, brought a second wireless countermanding the first. There was a change of plans; they were to disembark tonight after all.

Colonel Loder greeted them on the pier and presented Sir John's compliments. Waving aside Loder's urgent advice to use the armored car he had prepared to convey them to the lodge, Lord Athleigh and Lady Helen chose instead an open touring car. A few hundred feet from the dock the car collided with a dump cart. The military chauffeur jammed on the brakes and the car came to shuddering standstill. Suddenly a man on a bicycle rode into the scene, the same one who had watched the burning building earlier that evening. He assured them excitedly that it was just an accident and that they need not be concerned.

From the shuttered window of Michael Dolan's green grocery shop Callahan and his men waited beside their machine guns with baited breath. Callahan sputtered:

"Ten thousand pounds on his head and he rides into the middle of that! The nerve of him!"

Lord Athleigh and his entourage proceeded to the lodge, with the young man in tow. After Sir John had welcomed his guests warmly, the prisoner was brought in under guard.

"Your name?" Dennis Loder inquired.

"Dennis Riordan," he replied brazenly and smiled.

"You're taking a dangerous name, young man."

Loder inspected the papers that had been found on the man. A few letters, all addressed to Thomas Casey, medical student. Still swagging, he explained his presence at the scene of the accident:

"I was riding my pusher, peaceful as you please, when suddenly I heard a crash, brakes screaming and cars stopping, so I stopped. And then, would you believe it, I was whisked into a lorry, pusher and all, and brought up here and asked what I was doing back there!"

With a shrug towards Sir John, Loder turned to the guards and gave an order of dismissal. The heavy iron gates of the lodge opened for the young man and he waved a cheery goodnight to the sentries on guard. He pedaled steadily until he reached the ambush, where Callahan still waited. Without looking up at the windows of the shop he alighted and stopped as if he inspected his front tire. In a low voice he said:

"Patrick."

"The munitions come through at

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

She sweeps into the store and demands the attention of your salesgirl.

There are women, we are sorry to say, who sweep into department stores and demand service, no matter how many other customers there are ahead of them. And they are no joy to anyone except possibly themselves.

In the first place, they embarrass the salesgirl. What she is showing a satin negligee to one customer and another comes barging up like a duchess and demands to see something else right away, for I have no time to waste. The salesgirl is left in a pretty fix. She has to decide which customer is right.

In the second place, it is terrifying to the first customer, especially if she is a peace-loving soul. She doesn't like public arguments. She either has to get into one or let the duchess be served first, neither of which is her idea of a big time. She might, of course, offer her newspaper to the newcomer, so that no one's time would be altogether wasted.

But probably the only cure for the duchess type is an island in the Galapagos, with which she can have all herself for all we care. JEAN.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

THE STORY OF CHINA.

VIII—Manchus and "Pigtails."

A year or two ago, I asked a man who draws pictures for a daily picture strip why he was putting queues or "pigtails" on the Chinese characters in his story.

"I know," he replied, "but that's a way to show they are Chinamen."

For my part, I think we should keep up with the times, and should think of the Chinese as people without pigtails. We cannot say that no Chinamen have kept their old-time style of hair-dressing, but the custom is just about a thing of the past.

The pictorial story goes back almost 300 years. The last emperor of the Ming dynasty lost a battle against Chinese who had risen in revolt. He escaped capture, but went to a hillside and hanged himself. Peking, his capital city, was taken over by the Rebels.

They started what was called the "Ta Ching" (or "Great Pure") dynasty.

In the years which followed, there were rebellions against the Manchus, but all were put down. Different Chinese leaders claimed the right to the throne, and because the Chinese did not work together the men from Manchuria were able to make their power firm.

The Manchus had many Chinese angry when they ordered men in China to shave their heads in front, and at the same time to allow the hair in the back to grow long. When the hair was shaved in front, it was braided into a queue or pigtail. The law was made to force the Chinese to show their "loyalty" to the new line of kings.

As time went on, the custom of wearing pigtails grew popular. The people forgot that Manchu power had been forced on them. Even Chinamen who went to far countries to carry on the laundry business kept their pigtails. Perhaps they were afraid they never could go home without them, but at least they did keep them, and seemed not to mind.

Then came a revolt—a quarter of a century ago. The last of the Manchu emperors lost his throne. Laws were passed to bring an end to the pigtails. Some Chinese were glad to cut them off, but others were worried. "What else the Manchus should get back into power?" they asked.

In certain cities, soldiers were stationed in different places. When they saw a man with a pigtail, they ordered him to halt. They kept their big shears, they cut off his queue. Millions of pigtails were lost, and a great deal of the hair went into the hair-net industry, to give women in other lands "nets" to hold their hair in place.

TARZAN'S QUEST No. 21

Jane swung deliberately down from the bough to distract the lion from possible discovery of Prince Sabor. The beast uttered an hideous growl and leaped powerfully. The girl swung of his way barely in time. Then she repeated the perilous process.

Meanwhile, Brown had lowered the long strap to Sabor, but the Prince merely stood there trembling in panic confusion. "Alexis, snap out of it, Jane cried; 'you've got to get that belt fastened around you before the lion discovers you! Hurry!'"

"You poor sap," yelled Brown; "get a move on! With shaking hands, Alexis reached for the strap. At the same time he seemed to find his voice, and let out a lusty scream. "Keep still," Jane warned; "the lion hears you; he's looking in your direction now!"

The lion cocked his ear, then trotted toward the hidden Prince Sabor. Presently, Jane knew, the creature's savage fangs would be slashing its prey—but not if she could prevent it. The girl swung swiftly ahead and dropped down right in the path of the beast!

BANKERS WARN NATION AGAINST BOOM PERIL IN WAKE OF RECOVERY

Aldrich Lays Down 6-Point Program to Control Business March.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Warnings against an unsound boom which might grow from the present recovery cycle were issued by heads of two important New York banks in reporting to their stockholders today.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank, called attention to expanded bank credit and the recent rise in commodity prices, and asserted that unless adequate controls were applied "our recovery can all too easily degenerate into a dangerous boom culminating in disaster."

James H. Perkins, chairman of the National City Bank, warned that "it is the duty of the banks to do all in their power to avoid the pitfalls which increased prosperity creates."

Six-Point Program.

Aldrich laid down a six-point program of control, involving:

1. Balancing of the federal budget.
2. Increasing to the legal limits reserve requirements of member banks of the federal reserve system.
3. Further reduction of excess reserves of member banks through reduction of security holdings of the 12 federal reserve banks.
4. Handling of the Treasury's gold holdings derived from devaluation profits in such a manner as to prevent increase in reserves.
5. Use of the tripartite monetary agreement between the United States, Great Britain and France, "as a transitional step toward the reintroduction, in appropriate form, of the gold standard."
6. Restoration of the regulatory function of the rate of interest.

Perkins asserted: "We are witnessing a marked revival in business, unaccompanied by a corresponding demand for money, and resulting in a new all-time low interest rate. This is disappointing as reflected in the earning power of banks."

"I believe, however, that as a whole throughout the country the condition of the banks from an asset and recovery viewpoint is better than it has been for many years."

Walter E. Frew, chairman of the Corn Exchange Bank & Trust Company, said there would be a considerable increase in commercial borrowing if recent trends continue.

Discussing the possibility of inflation, and the large holdings of government securities he banks, Frew said he believed a country the size of the United States could "easily" stand a $35,000,000,000 national debt.

IL DUCE WINS LICENSE AS MILITARY AVIATOR

ROME, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini, who flies for fun, earned an army pilot's license today.

The premier, who is also air minister, was believed to have completed a 12-hour flight in a biplane, climbing to a height of 10,000 feet.

When he came down from the L'Aquila airfield near Rome, General Giuseppe Valle, army secretary for air, handed him his license as a military pilot.

Il Duce began to fly in 1919. He crashed once, but learning that he was slightly injured.

Interesting Georgia Personalities VIA THE ZODIAC

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON, Foremost American Astrologer.

MRS. KATHLEEN SEWELL HOGAN.

Mrs. Kathleen Sewell Hogan, who will occupy the position of hostess to the incoming legislature, was born March 24, under the zodiacal sign Aries. Aries is the sign of originality, ambition, honor and popularity. Add to these good points the intellectual and desire for study that is induced by the influence of the sign's governing planet Mars, and the reason why those born under this sign can achieve distinction is not hard to find. They are too steady and persevering to become morose and melancholy. They are truly endowed with wonderful possibilities.

The Sun's first application is to Neptune, combined with Jupiter. This endows her with unusual individuality, the ability to merit and receive high honors.

The Sun-Saturn position gives perseverance, tact and self-control. The Sun-Uranus position is especially favorable in ideas and oftentimes actual genius. It makes her highly intuitive and contributes towards her enterprising spirit. She wants to do things worth-while and will accept the responsibility for making things come out right.

You can get your complete astrological forecast through The Atlanta Constitution, compiled by Bernice Denton Pierson, one of America's best known astrologers.

All you have to do is fill in the coupon below, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, together with 10 cents in coin to cover mailing cost. You will then receive through the mail certain pertinent facts which deal astrologically with the Sun at the time of your birth, called a Sun-chart, and this Sun-chart, a series of numbers which will enable you to identify the planetary interpretations, which will be published in The Atlanta Constitution each day, dealing with the influence of a given planet on the day of your birth, according to the rules of astrology. When you have checked each of your numbers your forecast will be complete.

Below are planetary indications, according to the rules of astrology, of which may apply to your forecast. Every day these interesting interpretations will be published in The Atlanta Constitution.

forecast includes a Sun-chart and planetary interpretations, designed by numbers on your Sun-chart. Watch carefully day by day for your numbers.

Number 1200—You are a great lover of home, and will willingly subject yourself to almost any inconvenience to have a place of your own. The indications are that you will gradually master any difficulties that may arise. You are a practical homemaker, and home comfort means a great deal to you. You must have harmony.

Number 1201—You continually worry over the possibility of lacking sufficient money to carry out your program, for permanency is your aim. You are a practical homemaker, and home comfort means a great deal to you. You must have harmony.

Number 1202—You should overcome the tendency to be jealous or suspicious of the object of your affections. You are constant and affectionate and are not a trifler by nature. You like to be with others and of children. You prefer amusement of an intellectual nature, where the mind has a chance to develop. You have a very high standard of spiritual and philosophic life.

Number 1203—The indications are for a journey, probably by water. You are interested in facts, not theories. You have rather fixed religious beliefs. You possess a large measure of mediocrity ability. You are an excellent judge of people and things.

Investigate themselves, because of the hill code that says "let things be." Coston's feet were blackened and swollen. He did not at first recognize his brother, but in a lucid moment later told his father, Dr. C. S. Coston, he had no idea how he got to the mountain. Carl Gallagher, one of the mountaineers who saw the legs Sunday, accompanied the searching party.

Coston was carried out of the rugged hill country on a rude improvised stretcher. He refused to go to a hospital.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES RELEASED BY POLICE

Arrested on suspicion after allegedly attempting to sell religious tracts on Hill street, near Milton avenue, six women and a man, members of the sect of Jehovah's Witnesses, were later released yesterday for want of prosecution.

Taken into custody by Radio Patrolmen W. G. Scott and L. D. Cody, they were listed as Anna Morrison, 64; Jane Price, 70; Grace Lou Baker, 31; Evelyn Phelps, 25; Stella Baker, 27; Mrs. R. E. Lavine, 32, and G. E. Stoffler, 45, all of 1439 Peachtree street.

PATROLMAN J. E. IVIE RESIGNS FROM FORCE

The resignation of Patrolman J. E. Ivie, 29, clerk in the chief's office on the evening watch, was accepted yesterday by Acting Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby.

The officer's resignation followed an investigation into his arrest last Thursday in Marietta on a charge of drunken driving. Acting Chief Hornsby had ordered charges preferred against Ivie, to be heard before the police committee of city council.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

NANCY PAGE

It Is Differential To Stand Before One's Elders

Fy FLORENCE La GANKE

The Good Taste girls were getting ready to entertain the members of the Merry Midgets. They wondered just what they should talk about. Nancy suggested that they talk about the proper times for rising, for standing, and for sitting.

"Now suppose, Martha, that you were sitting down and a man, let's say the father of the girl you are visiting, comes into the room. Do you get up?"

"Yes, Mrs. Page, I do. If I were older I would remain seated because it is not correct for a woman to rise when she meets a man unless the man is much older or distinguished. But rising to greet my chum's father is just a courteous thing to do. I am right, am I not?"

"You are right. Now let's suppose that you are sitting down and your chum's brother comes into the room and you are introduced to him. Do you stand?"

"No, I don't think so. Not, that is, if her mother is merely passing through the room. But if the affair was a party and the little girl, let's call her Mary, should be sitting down I think she should get up and stand as long as her mother is standing. Am I right?"

"You are right. I think that if Mary would offer her mother the chair

32 BELIEVED LOST AS SHIP HITS REEF

Finnish Vessel Breaks Up; Eight Swim Through Surf to Safety.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Thirty-two persons were believed drowned tonight after the Finnish motor vessel Joanna Thorden struck a reef and broke in two five miles off the northeast corner of Scotland.

The captain sent 22 men, two women and two children into the raging sea in one lifeboat and then abandoned the vessel with the remaining 13 members of the crew in another craft.

Eight occupants of the skipper's boat swam through the pounding surf and scrambled onto rocks in an exhausted condition after the craft was dashed to pieces.

The Joanna Thorden, a new vessel of 3,225 tons, was bound for Gothenburg, Sweden.

BAILEY INAUGURATED ARKANSAS GOVERNOR

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 12.—(AP) Dynamic 42-year-old Carl E. Bailey became the 31st governor of Arkansas today in a brief and simple ceremony.

Two hours after taking the oath of office, he delivered his inaugural address from the capitol steps, then reviewed a four-mile long parade which wound through the downtown section before a crowd of thousands.

Bailey took over the administrative duties handled for the past four years by outgoing Gov. M. Futrell, 64, who guided the state through one of its most turbulent economic periods in its history.

CAFETERIA IN FLORIDA EN ROUTE TO CAPITAL

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Jefferson Caffery, United States ambassador to Cuba, passed through here tonight en route from Havana to Washington, where he will report on Cuban affairs to the State Department.

Arriving by air liner, Caffery said the trip was one of his routine periodic visits to Washington. He would not comment on the political situation in Cuba.

Can You Write a Good Letter?

The chief purpose of a letter is to convey a message or to impart information. Some people are born with a knack of writing interesting and forceful letters—others have to acquire it. There are business letters, letters of recommendation, letters of introduction, letters ordering things, letters of acknowledgment, making claims, making reservations, letters of thanks, condolence letters, congratulatory letters, acceptance letters, and just social letters. They are all covered in the booklet, THE LETTER WRITERS' GUIDE, together with discussion of the parts of a letter, punctuation, addresses, salutations, subscriptions and signatures.

Send for this Booklet and learn the art of interesting and effective letter writing:

News of Gate City Told in Paragraphs

Competitive examinations for positions of assistant home economists at $3,200 per year and associate exhibits designer, likewise at $3,200 per year, and assistant exhibits designer at $2,400 a year, have been announced by the United States Civil Service Commission. Full information will be supplied by the district manager of civil service board, J. H. Bouchard, at the post office building.

J. A. Murdock has been elected president of the Atlanta Camera Club. It was announced yesterday. Other officers named are Dr. Wallace Rogers, D. A. Reeser, H. S. Smith, Aubrey Watson, E. D. Randall, Walter Sparks, vice presidents; D. J. H. Kite, secretary, and Hubert Squires, treasurer.

Two Atlanta Agnes Scott students, Lucile Dennison, of 2339 Cottage Grove avenue, S. W., and Margaret Gilroy, of 443 Washington street, S. W., have been chosen to represent their institution in the annual competition for the Beck scholarship, offered each year to a student of Emory University, the University of Georgia or Agnes Scott.

Judge Edgar Watkins Sr. will read the recent message of the President to congress at the fortnightly meeting of the Atlanta Forum at 9 o'clock tomorrow night at the Henry Grady hotel. A discussion of issues it raises will follow. Permission to use the speech has been granted by President Roosevelt through his secretary, Stephen Early.

Atlanta Scouter's Club will meet at 6 o'clock tonight at the Peachtree Arcade cafeteria. James Lee, newly elected president, will preside. O. B. Keeler will make the principal address and Homer Knowles, Atlanta organizer, will present a musical program.

Radio Technicians' Association of Atlanta held its monthly meeting at the Robert Fulton hotel at 8 o'clock Monday night. New officers were elected, including Leon Weekes, president; Brainerd Thomas, vice president; R. O. Rogers, treasurer, and J. M. Williams, executive secretary.

County employees at the courthouse yesterday morning drew themselves to attention and saluted as a familiar figure moved through the halls in a new army uniform, wearing the silver oak leaves of a lieutenant colonel. It was "Colonel George F. Longino Jr.," county commissioner, whose appointment as lieutenant colonel was first learned when he appeared in full regalia yesterday.

Merchants and filling store operators in the southeast were warned yesterday by M. H. Ackerman, post-office inspector in charge, against the careless cashing of money orders as the result of a postoffice robbery at Lakeland, Fla. Monday night, money numbered from 8,115 to 8,200 were stolen at Lakeland and at Orlando. Thieves stole the signature stamp of J. D. Beggs, postmaster. Four of the stolen orders were cleared Tuesday at Daytona Beach.

Walter R. Hostetter, employed at the Atlanta municipal airport, has been promoted to a first lieutenant in the 55th reserve pursuit squadron, it was announced yesterday at four corps headquarters.

Meeting of 1937 tax committee, scheduled to be held this afternoon at city hall, has been indefinitely postponed, Councilman Frank Wilson, chairman, announced yesterday.

Pension applications of Police Chief T. O. Sturdivant and Patrolman J. S. Melton are to be heard by the police pension board today. Alderman G. Dan Bridges, police committee chairman, said he will protest granting Melton's pension on the grounds charges are pending against him before the committee. Melton has been ordered to trial Friday night. No application for pension had been made yesterday by Assistant Chief A. Lamar Poole.

Continuance of WPA Project No. 1,740, which employed eight persons to compile records of city employees, will be asked by A. J. James, assistant city controller, it was announced yesterday. The project was dropped several weeks ago. James said information gathered by the workers was valuable in awarding pensions.

Council's board of firemasters will hold its first meeting of the year January 27, Councilman John C. Marler, chairman, announced yesterday. Meeting will be at the fire department headquarters.
